Jet Crashes In Pennsylvania Killing All Persons Aboard

BLOSSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A Mohawk Jetliner crashed and burned on a wooded Allegheny hilltop Friday after its tail section ripped loose in flight, killing all 34 persons aboard. The FBI was called in to investigate the possibility that the plane was blown up by a sabotage bomb.

ALTITUDE 6,000 FEET

The airline said the plane, a British-made BAC111 fanjet en route from Syracuse, N.Y., to Washington D. C., crashed from an altitude of 6,000 feet 13 minutes after takeoff from Chemung County airport near Elmira, N.Y., its only scheduled stop.

"The FBI has begun an investigation to determine if it was sabotage," an airline spokesman said. "We want to know if there was a bomb aboard or whether someone might do to cause the plane to crash."

The possibility of a midair collision also would be investigated, he said, although reports from the scene indicated no second aircraft was involved.

The twin-jet, with 30 passengers and a crew of four, crashed on Bower's Hill about two miles east of this rural community in the Allegheny Mountains, 47 miles south of Elmira.

A number of witnesses reported seeing the tail section break from the plane shortly after 2:45 p.m.

John L. Thompson of Lockburg, a member of a logging team working a half mile away, said he watched as "the tail section broke off and it blew up, before it hit the ground."

The shattered wreckage of the main body of the plane, blackened by fire, was scattered over about an acre of dense forest, Thompson said, but the tail section landed about a quarter of a mile from this debris and was not burned.

The bodies were scattered throughout the wreckage. Eight of the dead were hurled free and the rest were trapped in the twisted metal.

Leroy Boyce of Wellsboro, group commander of the Civil Aeronautics Board for the North Central region of Pennsylvania, examined the wreckage. He said he could not tell what caused the crash but "I don't believe there was a second plane involved." None of the witnesses reported seeing a second aircraft.

At the crash site in rugged hunting country about two miles from the nearest road, Thompson's logging team built a makeshift road for the ambulances, fire trucks and other rescue vehicles that converged on the scene.

The Mohawk spokesman said the jet had taken off from Elmira at 2:35 p.m. 25 minutes late and was directed by the New York Air Traffic Control Center on Long Island to "hold at an altitude of 6,000 feet due to northbound traffic at 7,000 feet." Its normal altitude, he said, was 16,000 feet.

"At 2:48, the flight disappeared from the radar and they lost radio contact," he said.

U.S.-Soviet Talks Bring Hope For Mideast Peace

Intense 3-Hour Parley Leads To Another Meet

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Three hours of intense personal talks between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin on Friday brought some progress toward a U.S.-Soviet understanding on principles of a permanent peace settlement between Israel and the Arab states.

They agreed to meet again Sunday.

Johnson and Kosygin met for five hours and 20 minutes in this startled, and delighted, college town. Three hours of that time they were closeted without advisers, using only their interpreters for the most private possible conversation.

Then, at Kosygin's suggestion, they agreed to meet again Sunday at 1:30 p.m. This was an almost certain sign that some turning for the better in U.S.-Soviet relations must be at hand, despite angry outbreaks of differences over the Middle East and Vietnam.

Word of the Middle East policy development came from White House press secretary George Christian, who said an understanding developed between the two leaders that "Israel does, of course, exist as a nation." Actually this was declared policy for both the United States and the Soviet Union. Christian said that the two disagreed on four other points of President Johnson's principles for peace in the Middle East, but he added: "It is the President's hope and Secretary (of State Dean) Rusk's hope that on these other matters a consensus can be reached."

Christian reported it was Kosygin who suggested that Johnson and he should continue the meeting. Johnson was glad to accept, Christian said.

The talk covered a wide range of U.S.-Soviet issues and general world issues, generating an atmosphere of improving relations which far exceeded American hopes when Johnson came to Glassboro on Friday morning.

Subjects covered included the war in Vietnam, a pending proposal for a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, and a U.S. proposal to limit the race with the Soviet Union in ballistic missiles.

Christian reported that in the conference Rusk took an optimistic line on a nonproliferation treaty, expressing the hope that a draft — being discussed between the United States and the U.S.S.R. — will be put before the Geneva disarmament conference soon. The treaty has been added meaning with the recent explosion of a hydrogen bomb.

Rusk returned to New York after the meeting while Johnson took off for the West Coast and then Texas.

The secretary of state will continue talks with Gromyko. The Russians now presumably will report in detail to the ruling Presidium in Moscow and get fresh instructions.

In the Middle East, the United States has been backing Israel primarily and the Soviet Union has been backing the Arab states, which it armed over the past dozen years at a cost of more than $2 billion.

Kosygin came to this country for a special session of the U.N. General Assembly — which the Soviet Union had asked — to demand that the United Nations order Israel to withdraw its troops from conquered Arab territory. He accused Israel of being the aggressor in the Middle East war, and denounced both that country and the United States in his speech.

Other points hit the key railroad yard, 38 miles north of Hanoi, and caught an estimated 100 pieces of rolling stock — boxcars, flatcars, engines, etc. — on the tracks. Another 25 rail cars were reported destroyed or damaged in strikes at other rail yards, and staging areas.

On the ground, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 33 guerrillas Friday in a sweep through Viet Cong controlled areas in the Mekong Delta about 40 miles south of Saigon. Government casualties were reported light.

U.S. 7th Fleet warships patrolling the North Vietnamese coast silenced one and possibly three Communist shore batteries in one of the biggest gun duels of the war, military spokesmen reported Friday.

ed States in his speech to the assembly Monday.

Reports from Moscow and Cairo have said that the Soviet Union has promised to restore to Egypt all of the military equipment lost to Israel in the six-day blitz.

Nevertheless, U.S. officials have been saying they believed that the Soviet Union did not want to go into another big arms buildup on the Arab side because it is too expensive and too dangerous. Thus it was believed they might be willing to work for a permanent settlement.

Johnson, who refused to go near New York either to attend the U.N. meeting or to meet Kosygin, made a speech in Washington on Monday setting forth five principles for a settlement, later formally proposed to the United Nations by Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg. They included the proposition that the right of Israel to exist as a state — the fact that it does exist — must be recognized by the Arabs if peace is to be secure.

Johnson's other points: limits on the arms race, political independence and territorial integrity for all, right of use of international waterways — Suez Canal and Gulf of Aqaba — justice for Arab refugees from Israel.

The agenda remains wide open for the two leaders when they resume their talks Sunday. They could extend the talks over the whole spectrum of world problems and Soviet-U.S. relations.

Stratoforts Rain Bombs In Highlands

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. B52 stratofortresses today rained tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese base camps in the Central Highlands where increased Communist activity had been reported. It was the third straight day of strikes by the giant bombers against the Communists in South Vietnam.

Over the north Friday, U.S. jets pounded rail supply lines and returned once again to the Nam Dinh thermal plant which furnishes electricity for a key transportation point in the southern panhandle. Pilots reported good results in the attack on Nam Dinh about 45 miles southeast of Hanoi.

Military officials said the B52s bombed bunkers, trenches and trails in the heavily-jungled mountains, north-northeast of Kontum City, about 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

Air Force officials reported Friday that prop-driven A1F Skyraider fighters attacked Communist positions in the same area in support of allied troops "in contact" with the Reds.

The Central Highlands is considered a potential hot spot where North Vietnamese forces have the capability for large scale attacks. U.S. officials say elements of at least two North Vietnamese divisions are believed operating along the Laotian and Cambodian borders in the Pleiku-Kontum areas.

U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderbolts flying out of Thailand reported they 750-pound bombs destroyed Nam Dinh's generator hall, and heavily damaged the transformer house, the coal processing plant, boiler houses and the auxiliary transformer house.

Other points hit the key railroad yard, 38 miles north of Hanoi, and caught an estimated 100 pieces of rolling stock — boxcars, flatcars, engines, etc. — on the tracks.

Another 25 rail cars were reported destroyed or damaged in strikes at other rail yards, and staging areas.

Agent Says Probe Lacks In Evidence

NEW YORK (AP)—A private detective was quoted Friday as saying Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has uncovered no material evidence of an assassination plot in New Orleans against President Kennedy.

The investigator, William H. Gurvich, was said to have made this assessment to the late President's brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

Gurvich was described as Garrison's chief private investigator. However, in New Orleans a Garrison aide said Gurvich "has not been a part of the Kennedy investigation for the last two months."

The aide, declining to permit use of his name, said Gurvich was brought into the Garrison probe for special purposes, such as photography.

Garrison, himself, declined comment on statements attributed to Gurvich by NBC and by Newsday, a Long Island newspaper.

Garrison claims to have uncovered a conspiracy in New Orleans which he said culminated in the assassination of President Kennedy who was assassinated in 1963 in Dallas. He disputes the Warren Commission finding that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone as the assassin.

NBC said it learned that Gurvich recently told Sen. Kennedy there was "no basis in fact and no material evidence in Garrison's case for an assassination plot against the late President Kennedy."

The reaction generally to the fact that the Big Two summit conference would continue Sunday was an encouraging sign.

A continuation of the talks in itself similar view was expressed by Japan's permanent U.N. representative, Akira Matsui, who mentioned as having been discussed — Vietnam, the Middle East and nonproliferation — the proposed treaty barring the spread of nuclear weapons open as an international waterway.

One Asian delegate noted that the talks are continuing with interest, but he declined to comment. He had recent reports have indicated lunch with Kosygin on Thursday the United States and the Soviet Union already were near agreement that the Soviet premier did not intend on the long debated treaty, known at that time whether a treaty. He added that the explosion meeting with Johnson would be arranged.

One veteran diplomat, closely involved in Middle East negotiations at U.N. headquarters, exchanged other.

Householders Facing Utilities Hike Here

By BOB LEE
World Staff Writer

The distinct possibility of a raise in the cost of utilities came out of the adoption of a budget by the Monroe City Council Friday that dropped a tab of about $2,260,000 in the lap of the Utilities Commission.

The $5 million budget — a record — asks for $365,000 more from the commission than last year, and hinges as well on departmental economizing.

David Kaplan, utilities chairman, when asked of the rate hike possibility, said studies by the commission would not be complete until next week.

Mayor W. L. Howard, when asked, said "This may require the Utilities Commission to consider the possibility of adjusting the cost of some of their services."

There is no surplus, he said, and added that, without these measures, the budget would have remained at last year's level.

In a finger-pointing policy statement reinforced by an opinion by City Attorney Haynes Harkey, Howard told his department heads in the council session new policies aimed at smoothing operations and saving money would have to be adhered to, as well as departmental budget soundness.

Harkey said law does not require reimbursement from the treasury for any expenditures not made within the budget. Howard added, "I will not sign the checks."

Howard's economizing maneuver — a modification of a combined Department of Public Works under consideration during the week — provided that department heads will file with Ed Waldron, executive secretary, a list of all men and equipment not currently being used. Waldron, Howard said, will be aware of the availability and the needs of the departments through communication with department heads.

Before the budget was adopted, Monroe Police Chief James C. Kelly Jr. went through for the council a typical week-end's activities for his department, as represented by a chronological file of complaints and investigations.

They included burglaries, thefts, dog complaints, run-away juveniles, prowlers, fights, warrants, check violations, lost items, beatings and many others.

Kelly said that with the crime rate in the U.S. growing at a rate six times the population, he foresees "a very bad picture" of the safety of Monroe's homes and streets. "If something is not done,"

He also stressed that applicants to the department were few, and that "quality applicants were even fewer."

Diplomats Optimistic

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats here were optimistic Friday night that the talks between President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would produce positive results on at least one issue — the proposed treaty barring the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries.

The reaction generally to the fact that the Big Two summit conference would continue Sunday afternoon was "good." Most diplomats took the position that continuation of the talks in itself was an encouraging sign.

Specifically, some expressed the belief that of the subjects mentioned as having been discussed — Vietnam, the Middle East and nonproliferation — the conclusion of an agreement of the nuclear treaty seemed the most likely outcome of the talks.

An Asian delegate noted that recent reports have indicated the United States and the Soviet Union already were near agreement on the long-debated treaty. He added that the explosion of a hydrogen bomb by Red China on Saturday had given the problem a new urgency, which could be just what was needed.

One veteran diplomat, closely involved in Middle East negotiations at U.N. headquarters, expressed the belief that agreement— perhaps secret — might be reached on some phases of the Middle East problem. One, he said, was a possible agreement on steps to avoid an arms race in the area. Another was on measures to guarantee that the Gulf of Aqaba would be kept open as an international waterway.

Assembly President Abdul Rahman Pazhwak said the "fact that the talks are continuing is an encouraging sign." A similar view was expressed by Japan's permanent U.N. representative, Akira Matsui, who said this was "good."

One Soviet - bloc delegate also said he was agreeably surprised. He said he had expected the talks to be brief and formal. U.N. Secretary General Thant followed the developments with interest, but he declined to comment. He had lunch with Kosygin on Thursday and informed sources reported that the Soviet premier did not know at that time whether a meeting with Johnson would be arranged.

"We are happy to know that they are going to meet again," said Italian Ambassador Piero Vinci. "I suppose it means they still have something to say to each other."

Pope Wants To Keep Tradition Of Celibacy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said in a 13,000-word encyclical Friday he recognized the loneliness and renunciations of celibacy but was keeping the centuries-old tradition of an unmarried Roman Catholic priest.

"The sexual instinct is not all that man has," he said. His encyclical letter to all the bishops and priests of his church, entitled "Sacerdotalis Celibatus"—Priestly Celibacy—was a strong rejection of growing pressure to allow Catholic priests to take wives.

Priests in growing numbers, including some leading scholars, have put aside their celibate vows and married in the past few years. Impatience for change has marked many church areas following the 1962 Vatican Council.

The Pope took note of troubled consciences and perplexed priests. He said he had looked at "opinions and petitions which have come to us from all over the world, notably from some pastors."

But he said in effect that sex wasn't everything and that man could master himself if properly motivated in the service of God. "The present law of celibacy should today continue to be firmly linked to the ecclesiastical ministry," he said.

He said celibacy, which has been mandatory for the Latin Church since the 4th century, retains its value undiminished even in our time when mentality and structures have undergone such profound change. So strong and insistent had agitation for optional celibacy become within Catholicism that Pope Paul gave top priority to the preparation of his document, the sixth encyclical in his four-year reign.

He turned to three commissions of experts for scholarly advice, but wrote the bulk of the encyclical himself.

The Pope said the answer to the defecting priest problem lay in better weeding out of seminarians and a longer chance for candidates to the priesthood to accept the idea of chastity forever, or leave.

He provided in his encyclical for seminarians to be observed henceforth during "periods of experimentation before it (celibacy) becomes something stable and definitive," the candidate's own accepted personal obligation.

A Vatican spokesman explained that seminarians who have already taken the minor vows of subdeacon and deacon will not be able to leave right up to the eve of ordination with out red tape. At present such young men must go through a formal process of application and release from their pre-ordination vows.

As for the argument that the celibacy rule means fewer priests, Pope Paul said that, even the Protestant churches were having vocations problems and structures have undergone

King Hussein Plans To Ask U.N. For Aid

AMMAN (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan will fly to New York today personally to ask the United Nations to help him regain the territory he lost in the war with Israel.

A government spokesman said Friday, the 32-year-old king would leave Amman at 1:20 a.m. EDT to address the U.N. General Assembly. The United Nations announced in New York that the king would arrive at 7:30 p.m. and would address the assembly on Monday.

It was expected that he would see U.N. Secretary General Thant, possibly on Sunday, and that he might seek a meeting with President Johnson.

Hussein was expected to demand complete withdrawal of Israel from the Old City of Jerusalem and all the other territory it seized on the west bank of the Jordan River. The area includes the richest part of Hussein's kingdom, and almost half of his Arab subjects.

The government spokesman said the king would remain in New York "for a few days." Pickups and pgh: Hussein's

Oak Grove Opens Fund To Save Life

OAK GROVE (Special) — The town of Oak Grove has undertaken a project to raise money needed to keep the son of one of its citizens alive.

Clyde Kenneth Runnels, 25, of Bayou Vista, received word last week from doctors in New Orleans that his kidneys were not functioning and that they had to be removed.

A kidney machine must be used, which acts as a substitute for normal kidneys. This machine literally washes the blood from the young man's body and returns it under careful process.

Doctors said that it will cost $10,000 the first year in order to keep Runnels alive. These funds are needed for nursing care, medicines and other care, and does not include doctor's expenses.

He is the son of Mrs. Violet Runnels of Oak Grove, and graduated from Eudora (Ark.) High School in 1961, where he was on the All District football team for two years.

He also has a brother in Oak Grove, Ronnie Runnel. A trust fund has been set up at the West Carroll National Bank in Oak Grove, and at the Eudora Bank in Eudora, and trustees have been appointed at each bank to handle the fund.

Checks to the fund should be made payable to the "Kenneth Runnels Fund," and may be deposited at either of the two banks.

Pat, Luci Plan To Call Son By Name Of 'Lyn'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Patrick and Luci Nugent are calling their famous son "Lyn," even though his full name is Patrick Lyndon Nugent.

Grandfather President Johnson thus gets the top billing after all. The baby was named Patrick for his father's grandfather and Lyndon for his grandfather, the President.

But it is going to be "Lyn" to the family from now on, the nickname the young Nugents announced Friday at Seton Hospital, where they expected a weekend visit from the President.

The baby, reported "progressing beautifully," won't be photographed until he leaves the hospital, "Sunday at the earliest," a family spokesman said.

The ban on photographs was the decision of the parents. Meanwhile, a White House photographer had been on hand since the baby's birth, ready to take an official picture, and he was not permitted to do any photographing, either.

There haven't even been any snapshot photos of the child taken by his parents, said Miss Simone Poulain, a staff assistant to Mrs. Johnson.

The family apparently was expecting to see President Johnson at Seton Hospital on Saturday.

"I think tomorrow—Saturday—will be a busy day," Miss Poulain told newsmen at a hospital briefing Friday afternoon, a reference to a possible presidential visit.

The Johnsons' older daughter, Linda, will be traveling with her father and will be seeing her nephew for the first time.

There are still no firm plans for christening the baby, Miss Poulain reported.

The Nugent population was increasing with the birth Thursday night of a baby boy to Pat's brother and sister-in-law, Marine Capt. and Mrs. Gerard P. Nugent.

For the Nugent grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard P. Nugent Sr. of Waukegan, Ill., it was two grandchildren in two days.

Luci, a mother for three days, said she was "very thrilled" at becoming an aunt as well.

Then on Friday: "Made return to Mrs. Sell's house. Mama snake came to son's funeral. Result—double burial."

Pat, Luci Plan To Call Son By Name Of 'Lyn'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Patrick and Luci Nugent are calling their famous son "Lyn," even though his full name is Patrick Lyndon Nugent.

Grandfather President Johnson thus gets the top billing after all. The baby was named Patrick for his father's grandfather and Lyndon for his grandfather, the President.

But it is going to be "Lyn" to the family from now on, the nickname the young Nugents announced Friday at Seton Hospital, where they expected a weekend visit from the President.

The baby, reported "progressing beautifully," won't be photographed until he leaves the hospital, "Sunday at the earliest," a family spokesman said.

The ban on photographs was the decision of the parents. Meanwhile, a White House photographer had been on hand since the baby's birth, ready to take an official picture, and he was not permitted to do any photographing, either.

There haven't even been any snapshot photos of the child taken by his parents, said Miss Simone Poulain, a staff assistant to Mrs. Johnson.

The family apparently was expecting to see President Johnson at Seton Hospital on Saturday.

"I think tomorrow—Saturday—will be a busy day," Miss Poulain told newsmen at a hospital briefing Friday afternoon, a reference to a possible presidential visit.

The Johnsons' older daughter, Linda, will be traveling with her father and will be seeing her nephew for the first time.

There are still no firm plans for christening the baby, Miss Poulain reported.

The Nugent population was increasing with the birth Thursday night of a baby boy to Pat's brother and sister-in-law, Marine Capt. and Mrs. Gerard P. Nugent.

New York Experiment

New York City has come up with a plan whereby welfare recipients would be allowed to go to work and continue receiving public assistance payments. The idea is to stir recipients to get out and find work and perhaps, eventually, to get off the welfare rolls completely. At present, if a recipient finds work, his monthly assistance check is reduced by precisely the amount he earns.

Under the proposed plan, he would be able to earn up to $85 a month with no reduction whatsoever. Anything above that would mean a 70 per cent cut in his allotment, and if he ever got to making as much as $4,900 a year all public assistance would stop.

Those who think the whole welfare system should be halted and nothing put in its place are increasingly in the minority. But almost everybody agrees that the system badly needs restructuring.

Whether the New York plan affords an ideal solution is not for anyone to say until it has had a trial. But, certainly, anything that will make more welfare recipients self-supporting is worth a close study.

Highway Death Rate

Sprawling, unimpeded, scientifically laid-out superhighways may be responsible for the increasing number of auto fatalities.

The California Highway Patrol, which covers one of the finest highway systems in the world, says that the rise in accident rates in its jurisdiction cannot be attributed entirely to greater speed or denser traffic.

In 1959, 32 per cent of the 26,000 accidents resulting in injury or death involved only one car. By 1961, single-car accidents constituted 40 per cent of a total 36,000 and by 1965, 50 per cent of the 58,-

000 injury or death-producing accidents involved a single vehicle.

The increase in single-car accidents parallels the development of the state's vast freeway system. Therefore, the California Highway Patrol concludes that the higher accident rate results from the fact that drivers no longer have to concentrate on the road.

Towns, stop signs and small cafes no longer break the monotony and the motorist feels he can drive all day without stopping. The result: He pushes himself too hard and winds up the victim of fatigue or highway hypnosis.

Another Nation Totters

Nigeria had a bright future when it became independent of Britain in 1960. With 56 million people, it was the most populous state in Africa, and was rich in natural resources.

Today the nation is rent with tribal and religious strife, its future clouded. The Eastern region, an area the size of South Carolina, seceded on May 30 and proclaimed itself the Republic of Biafra, complete with its own flag, national anthem and most of the nation's oil wells.

But Biafra has not been recognized by any other nation, is under land and sea blockade by Nigeria, and may face war to achieve the sovereignty it claims. Lt. Col. C. Odumerwu Ojukwu, 34, is rallying his 12.3 million people to fight the central government of Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, 33.

Ojukwu has set up his capital at Enugu and would very much like to keep the oil business going out of Port Harcourt, which has been shipping 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day. But Gowon has cut the main road from Lagos to the east of the Niger River bridge, stopped plane flights to the east, and sent out patrol boats to control the coast. He has also ordered oil companies to keep their payments coming to Lagos, and not send them to Biafra.

Biafra's secession stems from the tribal troubles that have shaken Nigeria's whole structure. Most of Biafra's people are Ibo, those in the north are Hausa and Fulani tribesmen, and those in the west are Yorubas. In the last 18 months, feuding between these segments has brought bloodshed and insurrection to Nigeria.

Ojukwu has called for total mobilization in Biafra. His army has a core of 3,000 trained men — mostly supply sergeants, drivers and auto mechanics. A frantic effort has raised it to an estimated 7,000, many of whom have had about six weeks drill.

The man who directed the raising of the Biafra army, Lt. Col. Hilary Njoku, has quietly disappeared from the ranks of Ojukwu's military staff and talk of a run-in with his chief.

In the first week after Ojukwu's dawn declaration of independence, federal Nigeria's show of force has been confined to promoting Gowon from Lt. Col. to Maj. General.

The new general ordered an embargo on the Biafra coast. But Nigeria's one frigate and two of its four patrol boats remained in Lagos. One was reported patrolling the Biafra coast. Another, the N. N. S. Ibadan, once commanded by Lt. Cmdr. W. A. Anuku, now head of Biafra's navy, appears to be in Biafran hands.

Maj. Gen. Gowon called for general mobilization. The army laboriously started registering ex-servicemen. It issued an appeal for technicians — including sign writers.

The 7,000-man army's responsibility includes the security of about 320,000 square miles outside Biafra, an area twice the size of California with a population of about 40 million.

Gowon has cut off communication and postal service to Biafra. He has asserted Nigeria's legitimacy at the United Nations, and the Organization of African Unity.

So far, the federal government is banking on sanctions to bring down Biafra, although the government-controlled radio said "it is true economic sanctions have a notorious reputation for non-effectiveness, especially with the recent experience of Rhodesia in mind."

If sanctions are too slow and Biafra shows signs of hanging on, countries seeing a chance to do business with the new country may change their policy about recognition. Nigeria's Yoruba-dominated West, uneasy about remaining in a federation with the more populous North, may begin to consider the words of Yoruba politician Obafemi Awolowo. He said if the East seceded, the West would follow.

Awolowo and other politicians on record as favoring less central government have since been taken into the government of Gowon.

The breakup has its roots in centuries of deep tribal suspicion that rose to the surface after the British left. The British suppressed the rivalries not by force, but by providing what amounted to a non-tribal or non-partisan government. The aggressiveness of Eastern Ibos who moved to the North to do business alienated the slower North, resulting in a series of riots that reached a climax last September when thousands were murdered in the North. Biafra left the federation partly because it received no federal guarantee that further killings could be avoided.

The stakes are high. The East controls the $600 million oil business that was already a year ahead of production estimates. But more important to African countries is the possibility that if Nigeria blows to smithereens, the rest of Africa and its hopes for the Organization of African Unity will collapse into ineffectiveness.

This seems to just show again that countries of this type are not able to rule themselves and seemingly never will be.

New Generation Emerging In South

Area Offers A Vice Presidential Candidate

ORLANDO — Here in this pleasant and growing central Florida city, the signs of the new South are everywhere evident. The old political machines — corrupt, hidebound, and obstreperously racist — are gradually losing their hold on the responsible members of the community who tolerated them as a necessary evil. A new generation is coming to the fore. It is not in bondage to the corrupt vice racism of the past, and this has allowed it to take a good look at the men it has been sending to Washington.

Increasingly, the voters realize that their Representatives and Senators have been saying one thing at home and doing another in Congress, that their claims to conservatism are no more than a cover-up for a new Populism which draws its juices from the same water table that nourished the New Deal and its Fair Deal — New Frontier — Great Society progeny.

The result of this awareness has been the emergence of a Republican Party which has begun to restore the two-party system below the Mason-Dixon line and to give Southern voters an alternative. Prior to this, the choice for Southerners was between Claghornism and the liberal-labor apostles of polite socialism. For many Southerners, the choice was not an appetizing one.

In Florida, the result of these political changes has been the election of Claude Kirk, one of the new breed of Republicans, who combines a conservative economic and political philosophy with an unorthodox and colorful approach to the minds and affections of the electorate. Governor Kirk has not been afraid to attack the problems imposed by the alliance of organized crime and official corruption. Instead of indulging in the usual pious platitudes of many government leaders, he has taken those problems by the scruff of the neck, employing a private investigative force, independent of local involvements, to ferret out the once-protected wrongdoers.

Any police reporter knows that the most conscientious law enforcement officials are fatally handicapped because they must turn for help to the very local officials who have condoned, participated, and profited from the criminal and racketeering despoliation of America. Any investigator has seen, innumerable films, the impossibility of getting a crook to catch a crook.

GOVERNOR Kirk's successes, and his insistence on reversing the trend of ever higher expenditures on the state and municipal level, have made him a national figure. They have also given new life to Florida's Republicans and independent conservatives. This has translated itself into action at the polls and threatens the hold of the Democratic machine on the state legislature.

In national terms, this makes Governor Kirk a logical candidate for the Republican Vice Presidential nomination. Not only would his charm and voter appeal strengthen the ticket, it would make the GOP a truly national party for the first time in its history. The presence of Lyndon Johnson on the Democratic ticket helped to elect John F. Kennedy in 1960. Even Southerners who were aware of Mr. Johnson's Populist proclivities responded, if only because they felt that his inclusion was a recognition that the South was no longer a stepchild in their party's councils.

Having a Southerner on the Republican ticket in 1968 would also serve another, and vitally important, purpose. In Florida, as in the other Southern states, there is a palpable and justified fear among Republicans that the gains they made in recent years will be wiped out if "Governor" George Wallace makes a third-party bid for the Presidency in 1968.

At present, Mr. Wallace is determined to do just that. For reasons of personal ambition and personal vengeance, he is ready to scuttle the two-party system in the South. He has ideological compunctions since, as a Populist, he has no real sympathy for or loyalty to conservative principles. He is a states-righter, but as governor of Alabama, he has used all the spend-and-pledge gimmicks so dear to the Liberal Establishment in the Federal government. He will, of course, also do damage to the Democrats — in Indiana, Maryland, Illinois, and other Northern states where racial tensions are high.

If Governor Ronald Reagan is the Republican Presidential nominee in 1968, it will slow down Governor Wallace — where a Nelson Rockefeller or a George Romney will give him wings. A Reagan-Kirk ticket may well deflate the Wallace movement. At this early stage in the GOP's jockeying for place, this is a possibility that merits serious thought.

Hitler's Mistake In Russia Was Key One

AT 3:15 A.M., Sunday, June 22, twenty-six years ago, five months before Pearl Harbor, Hitler attacked the Soviet Union. And if World War III ever comes, God forbid, we can be mortally certain that it, too, will come as a surprise.

Our national sense of fair play and responsible use of world supremacy does not prepare us for this. But aggressors lay down the law of surprise as their first requirement and set the stage for it in every disarming way. "The Korean war was a complete surprise," said President Harry S. Truman, later. "No one thought any such attack would take place. I didn't think so and I don't know any official who did. A complete surprise."

The evidence is indisputable that, up to the very hour of Hitler's attack, Stalin insisted within the Kremlin that all around him must trust Hitler's intentions. Warnings from the Nachrichtenstelle, Switzerland's army intelligence service from London, Brussels, Washington and elsewhere did not impress Stalin. Moreover, 24 German reconnaissance planes had trespassed Russia and a camera in one that crashed showed that they were on military photographic missions.

There were 3,000 generals and 320,000 officers in Hitler's army. All were screened and the best sent eastward. Across a front of nearly 3,000 miles, more than two million men, 750,000 horses, 6,000 vehicles, 7,200 guns, 3,000 tanks and 1,800 planes advanced at the first glow of the Sunday's dawn.

The strategic planning was magnificent — a triple pounce. One group of armies (21 infantry, six armored divisions) stormed through the Baltic states to Leningrad. The second group (17 infantry, five armored, four mountain divisions) headed for Smolensk and on to Moscow. The third (15 infantry, 15 armored divisions) invaded the Ukraine.

Within 51 days Smolensk fell. The gateway to Moscow was open. Five days later Kiev fell. The Germans had destroyed the pivotal Soviet armies, including more than 1,000 tanks and 5,000 guns, and taken 600,000 prisoners.

But the June 22 attack had been delayed two months by diversions into Yugoslavia and Greece that Hitler had not expected. It had been postponed from April 6. He struck Russia too late. "Ask me for anything except time," said Napoleon. And Hitler didn't have it.

The logistics defeated him. Incredibly, on their deep missions each infantry division required 130 tons of general supplies daily, each Panzer division 300 tons, and each of the three army groups 18,000 tons a day. In total, this called for the equivalent of 108 trainloads a day. The logistics problem would have been marginal enough in balmy weather. But as Winston Churchill said when the Nazis bogged down, "They should have known it snows in Russia."

Russia owes her salvation to the Battle of Stalingrad, although the Russian people today are not even allowed to remember that. It is now officially called the Battle of the Volga. I was at that moment in Turkey on the Russian frontier with Turkish Marshal Fevzi Chakmak. He predicted the Soviet victory at Stalingrad to me and my dispatch containing his nearly incredible forecast appeared in The New York Times on June 30.

Chakmak told me Stalin, in a rare visit to a front, had gone secretly from Moscow to Stalingrad. Chakmak noted on his maps that the Russians still held the vital railroad at Voronezh, at the junction of the Don and Voronezh rivers. He estimated that Marshal Timoshenko had large, fresh forces concentrated above Voronezh. The Germans were wearily stretched into Russia for 1,000 miles.

"I know Timoshenko," the Turk said. "I am sure he will drop his armies straight down on the German lines and hit this descent from the north will be decisive on the whole war. Hitler can never recover from his coming defeat."

Gruff, able, tough-minded Marshal Chakmak called the turn at the moment when the apert German successes in the Caucasus thundered in the headlines around the globe.

Then while we were holding the Germans in the West we were encircled by the Russians from the East. But that's another story, separate from this June 22 reminder of a day marked forever in the changing of the world.

Power Failures Could Hit On Critical Day

ON THE same day that fighting broke out in the Middle East, 10 million Americans were hit by a total failure of electrical power.

Had this nation been called upon to take some action in the Middle East war, the power failure would have been a significant, perhaps critical event. As it was, and amid the headlines of the desert war, the power failure didn't draw much more than secondary headlines across the nation.

In ordinary times such a failure might be shrugged off. But in times when, on any given day, the nation could be faced with the emergency of some new Communist aggression somewhere in the world, the crucial matter of electrical power is just that — crucial.

Most Americans can still recall the vast failure of November, 1965, when 20 million persons in eight Eastern states were blacked out. There have been a dozen other major failures, affecting 26 states, since then.

IN EVERY case there is only one prediction for the future: it easily can happen again. The explanation is simply that power demands are going up faster than power supplies.

As far as it goes, the explanation is fine. It just doesn't go far enough. There are three distinct levels to this problem of power failures. On the level that already has surfaced, the solution is to create more federal regulation of the electrical industry, ostensibly to set "safety" standards that would prevent blackouts due to out-and-out failure of equipment.

Another reason is to mesh our local power companies into regional "grids" which will enable overloaded local facilities to draw on supplies from other areas.

There is a big joker in both of these approaches. For one thing, there is as much evidence to indicate that federal red tape cuts down on efficiency and safety as there is to indicate the reverse. Regarding the grid theory, along with making emergency power available, these grids also enlarge the area that could be blacked out in case of a malfunction somewhere in the system.

That last point brings us back to the first of the two levels now being discussed — the level of sabotage. It would be folly beyond belief to pretend that in a nation so dependent upon electricity as this one a potential enemy would not set power stations, relays and all the complex machinery of electrical supply as a prime target for sabotage.

I do not think that the level-headed American people would be panicked if this issue were discussed openly rather than being shoved under the carpet by struggle with communism. At an administration whose chief concern seems to be to avoid facing the facts of the war, the assurance of our electrical systems against sabotage is every bit as important as the plans now underway for plugging new tangles of red tape into the system.

The third level that needs to be discussed is that of the overall supply of electrical energy. The crux of this is the degree to which the federal government will butt out, rather than butt in. A perfect example may be found in the supply of electrical energy by nuclear power — a major hope. To the extent that the federal government has let private companies go ahead with nuclear plants, this power can be easily quadrupled. The federal planners once said would be possible. Yet there are still federal moves underway to stifle the growth of this power source. They should be quickly abandoned.

We need the power of private enterprise.

New York Experiment

New York City has come up with a plan whereby welfare recipients would be allowed to go to work and continue receiving public assistance payments. The idea is to stir recipients to get out and find work and perhaps, eventually, to get off the welfare rolls completely. At present, if a recipient finds work, his monthly assistance check is reduced by precisely the amount he earns.

Under the proposed plan, he would be able to earn up to $85 a month with no reduction whatsoever. Anything above that would mean a 70 per cent cut in his allotment, and if he ever got to making as much as $4,900 a year all public assistance would stop.

Those who think the whole welfare system should be halted and nothing put in its place are increasingly in the minority. But almost everybody agrees that the system badly needs restructuring.

Whether the New York plan affords an ideal solution is not for anyone to say until it has had a trial. But, certainly, anything that will make more welfare recipients self-supporting is worth a close study.

Highway Death Rate

Sprawling, unimpeded, scientifically laid-out superhighways may be responsible for the increasing number of auto fatalities.

The California Highway Patrol, which covers one of the finest highway systems in the world, says that the rise in accident rates in its jurisdiction cannot be attributed entirely to greater speed or denser traffic.

In 1959, 32 per cent of the 26,000 accidents resulting in injury or death involved only one car. By 1961, single-car accidents constituted 40 per cent of a total 36,000 and by 1955, 50 per cent of the 58,-

000 injury or death-producing accidents involved a single vehicle.

The increase in single - car accidents parallels the development of the state's vast freeway system. Therefore, the California Highway Patrol concludes that the higher accident rate results from the fact that drivers no longer have to concentrate on the road.

Towns, stop signs and small cafes no longer break the monotony and the motorist feels he can drive all day without stopping. The result: He pushes himself too hard and winds up the victim of fatigue or highway hypnosis.

Another Nation Totters

Nigeria had a bright future when it became independent of Britain in 1960. With 56 million people, it was the most populous state in Africa, and was rich in natural resources.

Today the nation is rent with tribal and religious strife, its future clouded. The Eastern region, an area the size of South Carolina, seceded on May 30 and proclaimed itself the Republic of Biafra, complete with its own flag, national anthem and most of the nation's oil wells.

head of Biafra's navy, appears to be in Biafran hands.

Maj. Gen. Gowon called for general mobilization. The army laboriously started registering ex-servicemen. It issued an appeal for technicians — including sign writers.

The 7,000 - man army's responsibility includes the security of about 320,000 square miles outside Biafra, an area twice the size of California with a population of about 40 million.

But Biafra has not been recognized by any other nation, is under land and sea blockade by Nigeria, and may face war to achieve the sovereignty it claims. Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, 34, is rallying his 12.3 million people to fight the central government of Maj. Gen Yakubu Gowon, 33.

Ojukwu has set up his capital at Enugu and would very much like to keep the oil business going out of Port Harcourt, which has been shipping 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day. But Gowon has cut the main road from Lagos to the east of the Niger River bridge, stopped plane flights to the east, and sent out patrol boats to control the coast. He has also ordered oil companies to keep their payments coming to Lagos, and not send them to Biafra.

Gowon has cut off communication and postal service to Biafra. He has asserted Nigeria's legitimacy at the United Nations, and the Organization of African Unity.

So far, the federal government is banking on sanctions to bring down Biafra, although the government - controlled radio said "it is true economic sanctions have a notorious reputation for non-effectiveness, especially with the recent experience of Rhodesia in mind."

If sanctions are too slow and Biafra shows signs of hanging on, countries seeing a chance to do business with the new country may change their policy about recognition. Nigeria's Yoruba-dominated West, uneasy about remaining in a federation with the more populous North, may begin to consider the words of Yoruba politician Obafemi Awolowo. He said if the East seceded, the West would follow.

Awolowo and other politicians on record as favoring less central government have since been taken into the government of Gowon.

The breakup has its roots in centuries of deep tribal suspicion that rose to the surface after the British left. The British suppressed the rivalries not by force, but by providing what amounted to a non-tribal or non - partisan government. The aggressiveness of Eastern Ibos who moved to the North to do business alienated the slower North, resulting in a series of riots that reached a climax last September when thousands were murdered in the North. Biafra left the federation partly because it received no federal guarantee that further killings could be avoided.

The stakes are high. The East controls the $600 million oil business that was already a year ahead of production estimates. But more important to African countries is the possibility that if Nigeria blows to smithereens, the rest of Africa and its hopes for the Organization of African Unity will collapse into ineffectiveness.

This seems to just show again that countries of this type are not able to rule themselves and seemingly never will be.

The man who directed the raising of the Biafra army, Lt. Col. Hilary Njoku, has quietly disappeared from the ranks of Ojukwu's military staff and talk of a run-in with his chief.

In the first week after Ojukwu's dawn declaration of independence, federal Nigeria's show of force has been confined to promoting Gowon from Lt. Col. to Maj. General.

The new general ordered an embargo on the Biafra coast. But Nigeria's one frigate and two of its four patrol boats remained in Lagos. One was reported patrolling the Biafra coast. Another, the N. N. S. Ibadan, once commanded by Lt. Cmdr. W. A. Anuku, now

Loan-Grant Programs For Students Listed

TODAY, the cost of sending three children through a four-year public college or university averages nearly $23,000, and the cost of sending three children through a private college easily can cost more than $40,000.

These phenomenal sums, due to swell further in the years directly ahead, have led to an unprecedented stream of new federal programs to give financial assistance to students from both low and middle-income families.

Aside from the massive, much publicized program of federally-aided guaranteed loans for college students, aimed particularly at middle income families, here are the biggest federal scholarship and loan programs to help students today.

—The National Defense Student Loan program, under the National Defense Education Act of 1958, so far has allowed some 1,000,000 students to borrow more than $1 billion to attend college.

This program offers loans of up to $1,000 for each academic year to undergraduates attending college at least half time. Loans are made, by the colleges, on the basis of need alone, at interest rates of 3 per cent a year, paid by the student. Repayment can be extended over a 10-year period. If a student becomes a public or non-profit school teacher, repayment of up to half of the loan is cancelled and if he becomes a teacher in a designated "hardship" school, the rest of the loan is forgiven.

—EDUCATIONAL Opportunity Grants, of as much as $1,000 a year, authorized under the Higher Education Act of 1965, are reserved for extremely needy high school graduates who cannot otherwise afford to attend college. A total of 221,200 students will receive these outstanding federal scholarships during the 1967-68 school year. If a student needs additional funds he can also apply for a National Defense loan or a state or private scholarship.

—In the College-Work-Study program, under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, a college student can earn up to $45 a week or $180 a month at approved part-time jobs on or off campus — plus perhaps $600 during summer vacation, for a total of as much as $1,300 during the year. In the 1967-68 academic year, an estimated 207,500 students will be employed under this plan.

—Under the Veterans Readjustment Benefits Act of 1965, veterans who have been at some time on active duty since 1955 are eligible for payments ranging from $100-$150 per month for full-time study at any accredited educational institution. This coming academic year, about 345,000 are expected to benefit from the 1966 "Cold War G.I. Bill." Veterans should apply to their regional Veterans Administration offices.

—GUARANTEED Loans for Vocational students, authorized under the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965, are available to students of any age, with or without a high school diploma, from low or middle income families, as long as they are attending or accepted in a vocational, business, trade or technical school.

The loans for vocational students, like the counterpart for middle-income college students under the 1965 Higher Education Act's loan program, are made by banks and other lending institutions, for up to $1,000 a year. The simple interest rate is 6 per cent, paid partly or fully by the federal government while a student is in school. The loans are repayable over a 3 to 6 year period after completion of the course, beginning 9-12 months after a student leaves school.

AT present, Mr. Wallace is determined to do just that. For reasons of personal ambition and personal vengeance, he is ready to scuttle the two-party system in the South. He has no ideological compunctions since, as a Populist, he has no real sympathy for or loyalty to conservative principles. He is a states - righter, but as governor of Alabama, he has used all the spend - and - elect gimmicks so dear to the Liberal Establishment in the Federal government. Our national sense of fair play and responsible use of world supremacy does not prepare us for this. But aggressors lay down the law of surprise as their first requirement and set the stage for it in every disarming way.

"The Korean war was a complete surprise," said President Harry S. Truman, later. "No one thought any such attack would take place. I didn't think so and I don't know any official who did. A complete surprise."

The evidence is indisputable that, up to the very hour of Hitler's attack, Stalin insisted within the Kremlin that all around him must trust Hitler's intentions. Warnings from the Nachrichten Dienst, Switzerland's army intelligence service, from London, Brussels, Washington and elsewhere, did not impress Stalin. Moreover, 24 German reconnaissance planes had trespassed Russia and a camera in one that crashed showed that they were on military photographic missions.

There were 3,000 generals and 320,000 officers in Hitler's army. All were screened and the best sent eastward. Across a front of nearly 3,000 miles, more than two million men, 750,000 horses, 6,000 vehicles, 7,200 guns, 3,000 tanks and 1,800 planes advanced at the first glow of the Sunday's dawn.

The strategic planning was magnificent — a triple plunge. One group of armies (21 infantry, six armored divisions) stormed through the Baltic states to Leningrad. The second group (17 infantry, five armored, four mountain divisions) headed for Smolensk and on to Moscow. The third (15 infantry, 15 armored divisions) invaded the Ukraine.

Within 51 days Smolensk fell. The gateway to Moscow was open. Five days later Kiev fell. The Germans had destroyed the pivotal Soviet armies, including more than 1,000 tanks and 5,000 guns, and taken 660,000 prisoners.

But the June 22 attack had been delayed two months by di-

Power Failures Could Hit On Critical Day

ON the same day that fighting broke out in the Middle East, 10 million Americans were hit by a total failure of electrical power.

Had this nation been called upon to take some action in the Middle East war, the power failure would have been a significant, perhaps critical event. As it was, and amid the headlines of the desert war, the power failure didn't draw much more than secondary headlines across the nation.

In ordinary times such a failure might be shrugged off. But in times when, on any given day, the nation could be faced with the emergency of some new Communist aggression somewhere in the world, the crucial matter of electrical power is just that — crucial.

Most Americans can still recall the vast failure of November, 1965, when 30 million persons in eight Eastern states were blacked out. There have been a dozen other major failures, affecting 26 states, since then.

IN EVERY case there is only one prediction for the future: it easily can happen again. The explanation is simply that power demands are going up faster than power supplies.

As far as it goes, the explanation is fine. It just doesn't go far enough. There are three distinct levels to this problem of power failures. On the level that already has surfaced, the solution is to create more federal regulation of the electrical industry, ostensibly to set "safety" standards that would prevent blackouts due to out-and-out failure of equipment.

Another reason is to mesh our local power companies into regional "grids" which will enable overloaded local facilities to draw on supplies from other areas.

There is a big joker in both of those approaches. For one thing, there is as much evidence to indicate that federal red tape cuts down on efficiency and safety as there is to indicate the reverse. Regarding the grid theory, along with making emergency power available, these grids also enlarge the area that could be blacked out in case of a malfunction somewhere in the system.

That last point brings us back to the first of the two levels now being discussed — the level of sabotage. It would be folly beyond belief to pretend that in a nation so dependent upon electricity as this one a potential enemy would not set power stations, relays and all the complex machinery of electrical supply as a prime target for sabotage.

I do not think that the level-headed American people would be panicked if this issue were discussed openly rather than being shoved under the carpet by struggle with communism. At an administration whose chief concern seems to be to avoid facing the facts of the any rate, the assurance of our electrical systems against sabotage is every bit as important as the plans now underway for plugging new angles of red tape into the system.

The third level that needs to be discussed is that of the overall supply of electrical energy. The crux of this is the degree to which the federal government will butt out, rather than butt in. A perfect example may be found in the supply of electrical energy by nuclear power — a major hope. To the extent that the federal government has let private companies go ahead with nuclear plants, this nation has easily quadrupled the power that federal planners once said would be possible. Yet there are still federal moves underway to stifle the growth of this power source. They should be quickly abandoned.

We need the power of private enterprise.

Senate Censures Sen. Dodd For Spending Political Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut was censured by his peers Friday for spending personally money raised politically. The Senate then dropped a second misconduct charge against him.

The censure verdict was returned on a 92-5 vote.

Dodd thus became the sixth senator in U.S. history censured or formally condemned by his colleagues. But he was the second man to be punished by the 90th Congress for misconduct.

Dodd voted against his own censure, registering his vote at the clerk's desk. Then he walked from the chamber as his colleagues solemnly announced their positions.

He did not return for the final minutes of the nine-day debate when the Senate was weighing a proposal by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., that it dismiss a charge that Dodd billed both the government and private organizations for the same travel.

Ellender's amendment was adopted 51 to 45, and the second count of the Senate ethics committee's censure resolution was dropped.

Dodd did not vote on the Ellender move.

But he did return to the floor during the Senate's final, formal vote — adopting the ethics committee resolution as altered by the Ellender amendment.

The vote on that question, a formality, was 92 to 5, identical to the initial censure vote.

In these two votes, Dodd's only supporters were Democratic Sens. Russell B. Long of Louisiana and Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut and Republicans Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and John Tower of Texas.

After the final vote, Dodd arose and told the Senate: "I feel a grave mistake was done to me."

He added that he feels he has done no wrong and will carry on his work "as long as the people of my state permit me to do so."

The Senate's decision was a grave, perhaps fatal, political blow to the two-term senator who vowed in advance he would remain in the Senate and seek a third term in 1970.

It does not, however, deprive him of his seniority, committee assignments or other prerogatives of a senator. The real punishment will be whatever stigma attaches to the Senate judgment.

For Dodd was spared the fate of Adam Clayton Powell, the Negro congressman excluded by the House when Congress convened Jan. 10. Powell, since re-elected to the Harlem seat he was denied, is fighting his case in the federal courts.

Pharmacy Grant Given To Northeast

Northeast Louisiana State College's School of Pharmacy has been notified that it will receive a $6,868 grant from the National Library of Medicine this year.

Dr. Ben F. Cooper, dean of the pharmacy school, said the money would be used to acquire informational materials to strengthen the undergraduate and graduate programs in pharmacy as well as other programs at the College connected with health science.

Cooper said a medical library resource grant for the school was approved last December and funds for disbursement have recently become available.

"Literature obtained with the grant funds will assist students in keeping abreast of the ever-expanding knowledge in the health science fields and will further strengthen the graduate program of the pharmacy school, which is projected to show a steady growth in the next few years," Dean Cooper said. "This literature will also assist the faculty in teaching and research and serve as reference material in programs of extension and continuing education."

The crucial Senate vote came swiftly and dramatically after hours of haggling and anger about procedures and parliamentary tactics.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., rested the prosecution for the Senate Committee on Standards and Conduct: "We've gone into the facts of the case as best we could. We brought them here."

Then Dodd stood, in his hand a statement he had penciled moments earlier on a white sheet of paper.

"Mr. President, my colleagues," he began, "I know that you all are exhausted from this long debate. I know that I am."

"Of course it is my hope that you will exonerate me."

"I harbor no personal bitterness toward any of you in this body. And I'm glad I do not."

"Nothing that has happened has in any way extinguished my respect for the Senate as an institution and for its members."

"I'm satisfied that history will justify me, but only time will tell."

Jonesboro Girl Acting As President

Serving as acting president of the Student Government Association at Northeast Louisiana State College during the summer session is Nelda Culpepper of Jonesboro.

Miss Culpepper was elected SGA secretary last spring. The SGA president, Steve Huffman of Monroe, is not attending summer school.

Acting as secretary for the summer period is Shannon Green of Bastrop, senator from the School of Education, and Billy Walker of Monroe, president of the junior class, is acting treasurer.

Other members of the summer SGA senate are John Alwood, Ferriday, of the School of Liberal Arts; Arden Anders, Monroe; Janis Brandon, Monroe; and Alice Godwin Nolan, Shreveport, all of the School of Education; and Bobby Seafidel of Chalmette, president of the senior class.

Beautification Projects Starts

The board of directors of the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. Friday announced the start of a "Myrtle" beautification project on its facilities and surrounding area, according to Dr. Doyle Hamilton, president.

Fred McCall has been appointed chairman of the project which will include painting buildings, fencing property, redecorating locker rooms and gymnasium and installing playground equipment at the Y.

The improvements are being made by the board members and friends at no cost to the Y.M.C.A.

Chairman of sub-committees in charge of the various phases of the work are Billy Abrough, Klein Crowe, Ray Horton, Earl Lingle and C. Henry Wells.

LBJ, Kosygin Talks Indicate New Era Of Relations

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The astonishing length of President Johnson's talks with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and the fact that they will meet again Sunday hints at the possibility that this was a historic moment—perhaps signaling a new era in Soviet-American relations.

The President and the premier discussed the Middle East and Vietnam. Nobody expected them to come up with ready solutions to what at the moment are largely insoluble problems. But the Glassboro summit is bound to have a heavy impact on the future course of world history.

A few days ago, many would have said that such a meeting—long hours of head-to-head discussion of the toughest of problems—would have been all but impossible in the context of what has been going on in the United Nations debate this week.

Indeed, the most important fact of this meeting would have been that the two men met at all. Now, the indications are that they really got down to cases. Perhaps that means future fruitful results.

The face-to-face talks came at a time when the world had reason for worry. Once again, as in the past, Russia and America had looked at a prospect of showdown, this time over the Middle East war.

What this summit accomplished was the production of balm for the frayed nerves of a watching world, which feared that a combination of the Middle East crisis and Vietnam could lead to a clash between the two nuclear superpowers—or at least to a new freeze in the cold war which could set the cause of peace back many years.

This was the seventh face-to-face meeting of an American president with a Soviet premier. Each meeting left its mark.

The summits of President Roosevelt with Premier Stalin at Yalta and Tehran shaped the course of history after World War II.

The meeting of Stalin and President Truman at Potsdam, Germany, after the 1945 Nazi surrender, determined the course Europe would take, and also had an impact on events in Asia.

President Eisenhower's meetings with Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin in Geneva in 1955 and with Khrushchev at Camp David, Md., in 1959, took some of the ice out of the cold war and opened the way for a U.S.-Soviet dialogue.

The thaw did not last long either time, but each meeting had long-range results.

President Kennedy's meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna in 1961, the last of the Big Two summits before Glassboro, gave the young U.S. leader and the old Russian revolutionary an opportunity to size one another up in advance of momentous events, which would include the showdown over Soviet missiles in Cuba.

It is obvious that Kosygin did not undertake to accept this summit on his own. He was in touch with Moscow and the collective Soviet leadership. Thus, that leadership itself stamped approval on such a meeting.

Evidently it reasoned that whatever it might lose by an agreement to talk was less important than what might be gained in the way of eased tensions which could permit the Russians to go forward with their internal development programs.

It was not easy for either President Johnson or Premier Kosygin to agree to get together, though both probably wanted the meeting. Both were under extreme pressure to meet, even though both would have political worries as a consequence, at home and in foreign affairs. Israel is the only reliable ally of the United States in the Middle East. But the Russian contention is that Israel should be forced to give up her gains from a lightning victory over the combined strength of the Arabs early this month, make restitution for damages and be branded an aggressor.

McKeithen Without Way To Settle Labor Disputes

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Gov. John McKeithen said Friday he has no way to settle disputes which have caused a long labor crisis and an industrial construction shutdown in Baton Rouge.

McKeithen said industry representatives met with him and advised him Wednesday they planned to stop some $250 million in industrial construction because of union work stoppages and slowdowns. The threat was carried out.

"They said the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers walkout and the Teamsters' harassment of firms operating in the area was only one cause for the action taken by industry," he said.

Meantime, it was reported that Teamsters Local No. 5 has asked for re-admission to the International Teamsters Union. One report was that the dismissal of business agent Edward Grady Partin would be a condition to the proposed re-admission.

Partin, who testified against former Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa in his jury-tempering trial is the key man in Teamster efforts to organize in certain construction areas in Baton Rouge.

Partin said the dispute between electricians and his union was not responsible for the shutdown. "I'm tired of having the Teamsters blamed," he said. The shutdown occurred after electricians walked off their jobs following a jurisdictional dispute with Teamsters.

Dr. F. Jay Taylor, chairman of the Louisiana Labor Mediation Board, met with local business interests in the Chamber of Commerce office as he began a fact-finding mission in the Baton Rouge crisis.

The full board will meet in closed session at 10 a.m. Saturday in an effort to find a solution to recent labor strife.

McKeithen said until labor and management show some indication they want to get together, "I don't know what can be done."

The governor said he is anxious and willing to offer services of his office to obtain an agreement between labor and management and between labor groups so construction can be resumed.

Charles D. Winters, business manager and president of Teamsters Local No. 270 in New Orleans, confirmed the Teamsters local is seeking re-admission to the international organization after years of non-affiliation.

The shutdown has affected more than 8,500 workers. It came after a series of labor incidents, most either directly or indirectly connected with moves by Teamsters to organize workers in the construction field.

Festival Awards Presented

By BOB CARROLL, State Editor

RUSTON — Beauty abounded at the 17th annual Peach Festival awards banquet here Friday night, as visiting queens from all over the state and a television star joined the 20 contestants in the Queen Dixie Gem VII pageant at the Student Center at Louisiana Tech.

A record crowd of over 270 persons attended the luncheon, according to Sam Thomas, chairman of the festival. Thomas presented a special award to Tom Kelly of the Kiwanis Club for his work and dedication to the festival.

Other awards were presented to the grand champion winners in the peach cooking and peach growing contests, as well as winners in the flower show.

These included Mrs. Gwenette Spears, Ruston, peach cooking contest champion; Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Bourland, Ruston, winners of the peach growing contest; Mrs. Charles Wilson, Ruston, winner of the Peaches and Poses division of the flower show; and Mrs. Earl Puddy, Ruston, winner of the Table award in the flower show.

Among those sitting at the head table were television actress Meredith MacRae, star of "Petticoat Junction," who sang at the preliminary of the pageant Thursday night and at the pageant Friday night, as well as appearing in the parade downtown Friday afternoon.

Others at the head table were the outgoing peach queen, Miss Dixie Gem XVI Jan Collier, the outgoing Princess Dixie Gem XVII Kayla Lynn Taylor, Sen. and Mrs. Charles Barham, Rep. George Holstead, Mrs. F. Jay Taylor, wife of the president of Louisiana Tech; Dean and Mrs. Virgil Orr of Louisiana Tech, F. O. LeVasseur, Lincoln Parish County Agent; Max Mathews, police jury president; and Dr. Felton, president of the school board.

Thomas recognized various civic clubs in Ruston for their work in the pageant, as well as the various committees working with the event this year.

Among the visiting queens appearing at the festival this year are Linda Leedy, 1967 Rice Festival Queen; Cheryl Beidler, Queen Cal-Cam; Janet Vining, Queen of Louisiana Shrimp and Petroleum Festival; Carla McCain, Miss Merry Christmas; Mary Taylor, Miss Holiday in Dixie; Sarah Gaddish, Miss LaSalle Parish; Debbie Swartz, Watermelon Queen; Mary Kendall Mheen, Queen Sugar XV; Pat White, Queen Floral Trail; and Mary Jo Osenbeck, Miss Dubach.

They appeared at the pageant, the banquet and rode in the parade along with the 20 queen contestants and the 21 princess contestants.

Parade units from four El Karubah Temple Shrine organizations were on hand to highlight the parade. They were from Shreveport, Monroe, Alexandria and Winnfield.

Leading off the parade was the steam-driven calypso from Dutch Gardens in Newellton.

Los Angeles Democrats Hear LBJ

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Johnson said Friday night he and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin agreed at their New Jersey summit talks that both want "a world of peace for our grandchildren."

In remarks prepared for a $500-a-plate, Democratic fundraising dinner that began only a few hours after his first meeting with Kosygin at Glassboro, N.J., "We reached no new agreements—that does not happen in a single conversation—but I think we understand each other better."

The President addressed a black-tie affair of 1,000 notables—including millionaires and movie stars—who paid $1,000 a couple for the plus occasion at the Century Plaza Hotel.

From the airport, the President had been flown by helicopter to a parking lot behind the hotel and was hurried inside without seeing the nearby gathering of antiwar demonstrators.

More than two hours before the President's plane arrived, police made 21 arrests while breaking up a sidewalk blocking assemblage of around 100 demonstrators.

The 21, some carried kicking and screaming to patrol cars, sat down on the sidewalk when police moved in. The 12 juveniles and nine adults were charged with unlawful assembly.

A short time later, a mustached man with a "peace" sign got into a fight with police, was overpowered, handcuffed and charged with battery.

Before they came, they had listened to a peace talk delivered from atop an upended garbage can by Cassius Clay, the former world heavyweight boxing champion who was deprived of his title after he refused to be drafted into military service.

The purpose of the contest is to test the club's ability to function in case of an emergency such as a hurricane of a nuclear attack, according to Max Maxwell, vice-president.

During the test the club will use no commercial power for their sets and will operate strictly off of generators, Maxwell said.

The newly formed 20 member club, which was begun in January, is also designated to work with Civil Defense in its various operations, Maxwell said.

On Lake D'Arbonne

Tech Forestry Camp Opens

RUSTON (Special)—Louisiana Tech has recently opened a new instructional and recreational near Farmerville on a 5.2 acre lakefront site donated to the college.

The camp house stands as a tribute to the forest industry. State representatives of the Society of American Foresters will meet at the camp June 30 to inspect the facility which is constructed of more than seven types of Louisiana lumber donated to Tech, including yellow pine, willow, red oak, pecky cypress, red gum, cottonwood, and white oak.

Tech's department of forestry has used and is planning to use the camp and surrounding area extensively for laboratory exercises. The camp acreage was donated to Tech by the Post and Fuller families of Farmerville.

More than 50 firms and individuals contributed most of the funds, materials, and some furnishings used in the camp. Materials and furnishings not donated were purchased out of the school's revolving fund surplus.

Some furniture was loaned by the dormitory system.

The camp has already been put to use by students, faculty, and staff. In addition to its instructional value the camp serves as an important recreational area for the college. The 15,000 acre Lake D'Arbonne is located only 22 miles from the campus and is readily available for fishing and water sports. A boat-house has been constructed. Eight boats and three motors have been given to the college and they are currently being enjoyed by the students.

The camp house is also very much in demand as a meeting place. The Faculty Senate, Associated Women Students group, Ag-Forestry Advisory Commission, Student Senate, and the Ruston Chamber of Commerce have used the facility or plan to do so in the near future.

It is expected that the area will be further developed as funds become available. A small assembly hall and a marine laboratory are additional units planned.

President Taylor commented that "the new camp is a welcome and much needed addition to Tech's rapidly expanding facilities. It will help fill a definite need for our faculty and students for many years to come. I express grateful appreciation to all of those who have made it possible."

College's Lodge To Be Probed

RUSTON, La. (AP) — The state says it will investigate a report that Louisiana Tech used bond money, restricted to building and equipping dormitories, to buy furnishings for a college lodge.

The lodge and a boat house are on the shore of Lake D'Arbonne in Union Parish, on a five acre site donated to Tech, about 20 miles from Ruston.

In Baton Rouge, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Parker, commissioner of administration, said the purchases will be investigated.

The New Orleans States-Item said it checked the lodge furnishings against bid specifications and found $2,200 worth of furniture in the lodge which had been bought for use in the formal lounge of the men's dormitory.

The lodge was described as an expansion of the college forestry operations and a place for recreation and education of Tech faculty and students.

Red Premier Ires, Delights Americans

GLASSBORO, N.J. (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was late getting to the summit conference Friday and he was late leaving. The first tardiness annoyed Americans but the second heartened them.

Kosygin delayed his drive back to New York for several minutes when he unexpectedly got out of his limousine to shake hands with cheering spectators and to express the hope "to be at peace with you."

Kosygin had stepped into his limousine after the summit meeting with President Johnson and was ready to drive back to New York. But encountering one of his warmest receptions in the United States, he got out.

Some of the onlookers waved placards and "Welcome Kosygin" and "Welcome Johnson." One man, John Russack, climbed a fence and managed to extend his hand over the heads of the crowd.

"Tovarish Kosygin! Tovarish Kosygin!" he shouted, meaning comrade Kosygin. The Russian Premier turned to his left in the tightly-packed crowd and shook Russack's sun-tanned hand. Speaking through Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Kosygin shouted to the people: "I send you greetings from the Soviet people and the hope to be at peace with you."

At this the crowd cheered lustily and surged forward. Spectators shouted and pushed each other, craning their necks to get a glimpse of the Soviet leader.

Texas Boosts Allowable To Highest In 10 Years

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Railroad Commission Friday boosted the state's July oil allowable to 42.9 per cent of potential production, the highest in over a decade.

The allowable was pegged at 3,512,042 barrels a day, an increase of 399,851 barrels daily over the revised June allowable, which was boosted 2 per cent to 35.9 per cent because of the Middle East crisis.

Commission Chairman Jim Langdon said "Texas and Louisiana may be expected to produce as much as 400,000 barrels per day additional crude, or 12 million barrels a month, to meet just U.S. domestic deficits occasioned by disruption of supplies from the Middle East."

He said he had asked Interior Secretary Stewart Udall to help prevent a repeat of the situation after the 1956-57 Suez crisis, when Texas boosted its oil production greatly only to find itself saddled with an immense oversupply of oil when the crisis ended.

Langdon said that when the present crisis ends, the federal government should make sure domestic petroleum stocks are reduced to normal levels before the U.S. resumes normal imports from the Arab nations.

On May 18 the commission set a June allowable of 33.8 per cent. When the regulatory agency met June 15 to set the July allowable, the Middle East war had broken out and the commission delayed setting the July allowable, but raised the June figure to 35.9 per cent for the last 15 days of this month.

Langdon said U.S. crude stock were already 280 million barrels when the fighting began in the Middle East.

President Taylor commented that "the new camp is a welcome and much needed addition to Tech's rapidly expanding facilities. It will help fill a definite need for our faculty and students for many years to come. I express grateful appreciation to all of those who have made it possible."

Conservative Heads GOP

By JACK BELL.
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Entrenched conservatives rolled over party moderates Friday to elect Jack McDonald of Nashville, Tenn., as Young Republican National Federation chairman.
McDonald, who campaigned as a conservative and for independence of the youth organization from domination by the senior Republican National Committee, succeeds Tom Van Sickle of Fort Scott, Kan.
The new chairman's selection for a two-year term which spans next year's presidential nominating convention seemed to point toward organized Young Republican opposition to a moderate candidate such as Gov.

George Romney of Michigan.
There was a great deal of enthusiasm among the conservatives for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, principal speaker at the convention's windup banquet.
Reagan flew in from California with a smiling endorsement for the independent action taken by the Young Republicans.

Reagan, principal speaker at the convention's windup banquet told a news conference he is all for party unity.
"But I believe voluntary groups lose their virility if they are completely dominated by the party machinery," he said.
Reagan reiterated that he is not a candidate for the 1968
GOP presidential nomination.

bie Rester, Forrest, was named ria, Starkville, secretary, and

Kosygin Glimpses Slice Of Urban Life In America

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) —
Premier Alexei N. Kosygin saw 111 miles of American life Friday. There were fume-spewing oil refineries in New Jersey's tidal flatlands, industrial plants belching smoke, chickens scratching in the barnyards of the state's fertile south and a traffic jam outside New York.

On his first visit to the United States, Kosygin rode leisurely down the New Jersey Turnpike from New York for his meeting in Glassboro with President Johnson. There was a final burst of speed at the end.

He saw the traffic jam shortly after leaving New York at 8:13 a.m. The morning in Manhattan was muggy and misty.

His motorcade escorted fore and after by police cars, rolled through the Lincoln Tunnel without paying the 50 cent toll and on to the turnpike.

About this time some tens of thousands of commuters trying to get to their New York jobs must have been wondering whether the U.S.-Soviet summit was really worth it.

On both sides of the Lincoln Tunnel rush hour traffic was backed up bumper to bumper as police held the roadway clear for the Soviet entourage.

As Kosygin rolled southward along the six-lane turnpike, motorists who happened to be going in the same direction that hour were blocked by police following the motorcade.

Kosygin's escorts chose a 30-m.p.h. pace—apparently to give the Soviet boss better sightseeing and avoid arriving at Glassboro ahead of the appointed 11 a.m. meeting hour.

So for most of 111 miles, southbound cars buses and trucks were bumper-to-bumper behind his motorcade down the highway too.

Not until Kosygin neared Glassboro, and it seemed he might be able late, did his escort speed up, to 70 m.p.h. The turnpike speed limit is 60.

He arrived about 11:20, about a half hour after the President.

From the tall Manhattan skyline to suburban and industrialized northern New Jersey—first the tidal marshlands, then bustling Newark Airport and, on the opposite side of the road,
Port Newark harbor, further along refineries and a varied series of chemical plants—and then on through gently rolling green farmlands producing vegetables fruit and dairy products.

The sun broke through the mist intermittently, raising the temperature from the 70s up toward the 80s.

As the motorcade turned off the superhighway and took the narrower two-lane side road to this little college town, Kosygin rode by the homes of some Americans who obviously were expecting he would be taking that route.

Some had American flags hung in the windows. One citizen, unidentified, had a dozen or so small U.S. flags placed about his lawn.

At the roadside were fields of potato plants, miles of peach trees and occasional side-yard kitchen gardens. Young corn sightseeing and avoid arriving was about 18 inches high and chickens clucked and scratched in the gravel of poultry runs.

Conservative Heads GOP

By JACK BELL
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Entrenched conservatives rolled over party moderates Friday to elect Jack McDonald of Nashville, Tenn., as Young Republican National Federation chairman.

McDonald, who campaigned as a conservative and for independence of the youth organization from domination by the senior Republican National Committee, succeeds Tom Van Sickle of Fort Scott, Kan.

The new chairman's selection for a two-year term which spans next year's presidential nominating convention seemed to point toward organized Young Republican opposition to a moderate candidate such as Gov. George Romney of Michigan. There was a great deal of enthusiasm among the conservatives for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, principal speaker at the convention's windup banquet.

Reagan flew in from California with a smiling endorsement for the independent action taken by the Young Republicans.

Reagan, principal speaker at the convention's windup banquet told a news conference he is all for party unity.

"But I believe voluntary groups lose their virility if they are completely dominated by the party machinery," he said.

Reagan reiterated that he is not a candidate for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination, but is leaving his name in free-for-all presidential primaries because of he signed an affidavit necessary to get off the ballot there it would affect his position as an expected favorite son from California.

Asked if he thought Romney's failure to support Goldwater in 1964 would react against the Michigan governor's expected bid for next year's nomination, Reagan replied: "I think we have reached a time when there should be some forgetting about such things."

The California governor sided with the Young Republican convention in calling for a step-up in military action in Vietnam and the "full effort necessary to win."

McDonald told a news conference that as YR chairman he will not promote any presidential candidate before the convention. He said he regards Romney and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as leading contenders at this point for the 1968 nomination. But he said there are "dozens of others" who would make a strong race against President Johnson.

As for the Young Republicans, McDonald said they want a "measure of autonomy" for their organization. This should not be a servant-boss relationship with the National Committee," he said. "We have to have a responsible voice in policy-making. If we don't have that then we don't have anything but a label, and you can't attract young people with a label. After all, we are not children, and we have some ideas."

McDonald, candidate of the conservative "syndicate" that worked for Barry Goldwater's nomination in 1964 and apparently still follows his leadership, defeated Jim Betts of Cleveland, Ohio, and Ray Cooper of Little Rock, Ark.

The vote was McDonald, 425; Betts, 184; Cooper, 13.

As the candidate of the moderate "gang busters," Betts failed to shake the syndicate's holding on the organization. He got strong support from New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Minnesota, Ohio and Pennsylvania. But he was swamped by the solid southern, midwestern and western vote for McDonald.

The new chairman told the convention he expects to work "side by side" with GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss despite the convention's overwhelming rejection of Bliss-supported proposals to give the National Committee stronger control over the youth organization.

McDonald said he already has checked with Bliss on the appointment of a YR executive director. This was a veto that Bliss demanded, and the convention declined to give him formally.

MMA Elects New Officers

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Two subdivisions of the Mississippi Municipal Association elected officers at the MMA convention here Friday.

J. T. Roberts, Aberdeen, who has been vice president of the City Clerks Association, moved up to the presidency. Mrs. Robbie Rester, Forrest, was named vice president; Mrs. Lena Scurlia, Starkville, secretary, and Mrs. Georgia L. Cobb, Canton, treasurer.

James A. Blount, Charleston, was re-elected president of the City Attorneys Association. Also re-elected was T. W. Campbell, Yazoo City, vice chairman.

Kosygin Glimpses Slice Of Urban Life In America

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin saw 111 miles of American life Friday. There were fume-spewing oil refineries in New Jersey's tidal flatlands, industrial plants belching smoke, chickens scratching in the barnyards of the state's fertile south and a traffic jam outside New York.

On his first visit to the United States, Kosygin rode leisurely down the New Jersey Turnpike from New York for his meeting in Glassboro with President Johnson. There was a final burst of speed at the end.

He saw the traffic jam shortly after leaving New York at 8:13 a.m. The morning in Manhattan was muggy and misty.

His motorcade, escorted forward and after by police cars, rolled through the Lincoln Tunnel—without paying the 50 cent toll—and on to the turnpike.

About this time some tens of thousands of commuters trying to get to their New York jobs must have been wondering whether the U.S.-Soviet summit was really worth it.

On both sides of the Lincoln Tunnel rush hour traffic was backed up bumper to bumper—as police held the roadway clear for the Soviet entourage.

As Kosygin rolled southward along the six-lane turnpike, motorists who happened to be going in the same direction that hour were blocked by police following the motorcade.

Kosygin's escorts chose a 30-40 m.p.h. pace—apparently to give the Soviet boss better sightseeing and avoid arriving at Glassboro ahead of the appointed 11 a.m. meeting hour.

So for most of 111 miles, southbound cars buses and trucks were bumper-to-bumper behind his motorcade down the highway too.

Not until Kosygin neared Glassboro, and it seemed he might be a bit late, did his escort speed up, to 70 m.p.h. The turnpike speed limit is 60.

He arrived about 11:20, about a half hour after the President.

From the tall Manhattan skyline to suburban and industrialized northern New Jersey—first the tidal marshlands, then bustling Newark Airport and, on the opposite side of the road, Port Newark harbor, further along refineries and a varied series of chemical plants—and then on through gently rolling, green farmlands producing vegetables fruit and dairy products.

The sun broke through the mist intermittently, raising the temperature from the 70s up toward the 80s.

As the motorcade turned off the superhighway and took the narrower two-lane side road to this little college town, Kosygin rode by the homes of some Americans who obviously were expecting he would be taking that route.

Some had American flags hung in the windows. One citizen, unidentified, had a dozen or so small U.S. flags placed about his lawn.

At the roadside were fields of potato plants, miles of peach trees and occasional side-yard kitchen gardens. Young corn was about 18 inches high and chickens clucked and scratched in the gravel of poultry runs.

Taylor Price Is Too High, Fears States

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Coach Tom Fears of the New Orleans Saints says he would like to have fullback Jim Taylor but not at the price Taylor and the Green Bay Packers reportedly are asking.

Fears arrived in San Diego Thursday to prepare for the new National Football League team's training camp at California Western University.

Taylor played out his option last year with the Packers and now is asking a reported $400,000 over the next four years.

The 31-year-old Taylor, a graduate of Louisiana State, would be a popular figure for the Saints.

But in addition to his salary, Packers chief Vince Lombardi is asking the Saints to give up their first round draft choice for the next three years.

"Even one No. 1 choice would be unfair to us," said Fears. "It would stop our building program. When I say this, people in Louisiana look at me as though I'm daff."

"But knowledgeable people understand," he said. "When I ask whether they'd rather have Taylor or Bubba Smith, they all say Smith. We need people who can contribute right now and over the next several years."

Fears said his dilemma would be solved if Taylor returned to Green Bay.

"It would be appropriate if he ended his illustrious career there," Fears said.

"Lombardi is asking at least a No. 1 draft choice and that's a great deal for a ball player with limited amount of time left," he said.

Judge Vaino Spencer dismissed the charge, ruling that Allen had not been properly advised of his constitutional rights. The woman judge also ruled that there was no extradition for the second year of the 19-year-old student's detention in a row. He shot a 139 for the 36 holes and won by three strokes.

The competition brought the first two laps helped a bit, said Ryun, complaining by opposition.

This was the 12th time Ryun had broken a minutes and 10 holes and won by three strokes.

Grettle the 19th

Some show driving and dough putting upended the favorites Friday in the Sixth Annual Bayou DeSiard Senior Invitational Golf Tournament as defending champion Clyde Nash, medalist Don Stone and second - low qualifier Jerome Tujague dropped their first - round matches.

George Cooper pinned Nash down on the final hole, John Holtgreve bested Stone 3 and 2, and Dr. B. J. LaCour topped Tujague in a thriller, 1 up in 20 holes.

Amos Shelton of Monroe downed Gilbert Hattier, New Orleans, 2 and 1 in the other pairing in the All - Age Championship Flight.

Today's round in the 54 hole, match play tournament over the par 70, 6,315 yd. course will be semi - final competition in all flights, along with first round consolation matches.

Matches will start at 8:30 a.m., and Sunday's finals will open from a shotgun start in the morning at 9 o'clock, with field play for golfers eliminated from regular competition. Prizes will be awarded immediately after the concluding rounds.

Cooper will go against LaCour and Holtgreve will face Shelton in the featured foursome today, with tee - off time set for 9:20.

Nash, a local entry, took an early lead over Cooper, going three up on the first four holes. Cooper cut Nash's lead to two with a birdie on No. 5 and then narrowed it to one by paring No. 6. Nash was one up at the turn with a 36, but Cooper won the No. 12 hole with a fine putt that left the match even.

Nash was one up going into the next - to - last hole when Cooper sunk a beautiful 15-foot putt for a birdie 2 and a tie. Cooper then wrapped up the match on 18 with a par to Nash's bogey.

"I got beat with the putter," commented Nash. "Cooper made about ten curling putts and played good square golf on the fairways."

Holtgreve turned in a superb performance against the talented Stone, who played the Bayou DeSiard course for the first time Wednesday.

Stone looked up to his medalist round as he started with a birdie on the first hole, but soon saw his lead dwindle and found himself three down after the first nine holes, never to recover as Holtgreve, of New Orleans, finished with a 73 while Stone, a Houston senior, carded a 76.

Florida's entry, LaCour, had the tightest match of the day, and needed a fine 9-iron shot on the 20th hole to overcome Tujague, another Crescent City linkman.

"It was very satisfying," said LaCour. He expressed apprehension about today's match with Cooper. "I never saw anybody putt as great as he did against Nash."

Shelton, the only Monroe entry left in the top flight, carded the best score of the day, a 72, in his victory over Hattier of New Orleans.

Shelton was one down after the first nine, but quickly took the lead as he won holes No. 10 and 11. He then toured the last seven holes in par to nose out a medalist - tying round of 74 by Hattier.

The medalist jinx struck in a wide area as 15 seeded players in the other five flights were upset Friday.

In a nine - hole ladies tournament Friday afternoon, Mrs. Dot Nash won the First Flight with a low gross of 38. Mrs. Virginia LaCour had the low net of 35. Mrs. Betty Williams won the low putt title, and Mrs. Liba Holtgreve captured the hold - in - one contest.

Mrs. Winnie Savoie captured the low gross in the Second Flight, while Mrs. Marie Patterson had the low net. Mrs. Lisa Guilkey had the lowest number of putts, and Mrs. Nan Dowdy won the hole - in - one competition.

Maris' Homer Sends Cards By Phillies, 3-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Roger Maris' leadoff homer in the eighth inning propelled St. Louis to a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Friday night, extending the Cardinals' winning streak to six games and a three game lead over second place Cincinnati in the National League.

Maris' blast over the right field fence — the fifth hit off right-hander Rick Wise, gave rookie Dick Hughes his seventh triumph in nine decisions. Hughes allowed only four hits — including successive homers by Rich Allen and John Callison in the first inning.

The Cardinals bounced back to tie the score in the second, Dal Maxvill singling one run across and the other scoring as Lou Brock bounced out with the bases loaded.

With two out in the first, Allen blasted his ninth homer into the center field gardens and Callison followed with his ninth of the year, a drive into the right center field seats.

Tim McCarver led off the Cards' second with a single and took second on a ground out. Julian Javier walked and Maxvill singled to left, scoring McCarver. Hughes bunted and everybody was safe when Wise threw late to first. Brock then tapped back to Wise. Javier scoring on the infield out.

The Phils filled the bases in the ninth on two walks and a hit batsman before Hughes fanned pinch hitter Doug Clemens for the final out.

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — Guy Wimberly of Albuquerque, N.M., shot a five-under-par Sunday to win the Navajo Trail Golf Tournament for the second year in a row.

Some show driving and dough putting upended the favorites Friday in the Sixth Annual Bayou DeSiard Senior Invitational Golf Tournament as defending champion Clyde Nash, medalist Don Stone and second-low qualifier Jerome Tujague dropped their first-round matches.

George Cooper pinned Nash down on the final hole, John Holtgreve bested Stone 3 and 2, and Dr. B. J. LaCour topped Tujague in a thriller, 1 up in 20 holes.

Amos Shelton of Monroe downed Gilbert Hattier, New Orleans, 2 and 1 in the other pairing in the All-Age Championship Flight.

Today's round in the 54 hole, match play tournament over the par 70, 6,315 yd. course will be semi-final competition in all flights, along with first round consolation matches.

Matches will start at 8:30 a.m., and Sunday's finals will open from a shotgun start in the morning at 9 o'clock, with field play for golfers eliminated from regular competition. Prizes will be awarded immediately after the concluding rounds.

Cooper will go against LaCour and Holtgreve will face Shelton in the featured foursome today, with tee-off time set for 9:20.

Nash, a local entry, took an early lead over Cooper, going three up on the first four holes. Cooper cut Nash's lead to two with a birdie on No. 5 and then narrowed it to one by paring No. 6.

Nash was one up going into the next-to-last hole when Cooper sunk a beautiful 15-foot-er for a birdie 2 and a tie.

Cooper then wrapped up the match on 18 with a par to Nash's bogey.

"I got beat with the putter," commented Nash. "Cooper made about ten curling putts and played good square golf on the fairways."

Holtgreve turned in a superb performance against the talented Stone, who played the Bayou DeSiard course for the first time Wednesday.

Stone looked up to his medalist round as he started with a birdie on the first hole, but soon saw his lead dwindle and found himself three down after the first nine holes, never to recover as Holtgreve, of New Orleans, finished with a 73 while Stone, a Houston senior, carded a 76.

Florida's entry, LaCour, had the tightest match of the day, and needed a fine 9-iron shot on the 20th hole to overcome Tujague, another Crescent City linksmen.

"It was very satisfying," said LaCour. He expressed apprehension about today's match with Cooper. "I never saw anybody putt as great as he did against Nash."

Shelton, the only Monroe entry left in the top flight, carded the best score of the day, a 72, in his victory over Hattier of New Orleans.

Shelton was one down after the first nine, but quickly took the lead as he won holes No. 10 and 11. He then toured the last seven holes in par to nose out a medalist - tying round of 74 by Hattier.

The medalist jinx struck in a wide arc as 15 seeded players in the other five flights were upset Friday.

In a nine-hole ladies tournament Friday afternoon, Mrs. Dot Nash won the First Flight with a low gross of 38. Mrs. Virginia LaCour had the low net of 35. Betty Williams won the low putt title, and Mrs. Liba Holtgreve captured the hold-in-one contest.

Mrs. Winnie Savoie captured the low gross in the Second Flight, while Mrs. Marie Patterson had the low net. Mrs. Lisa Guilkey had the lowest number of putts, and Mrs. Nan Dowdy won the hole-in-one competition.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Roger Maris' leadoff homer in the eighth inning propelled St. Louis to a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Friday night, extending the Cardinals' winning streak to six games and a three game lead over second place Cincinnati in the National League.

Nancy Richey Tops Van Zyl For Semi Win

LONDON (AP) — Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., posted a rain-delayed victory over Annette Van Zyl of South Africa Friday and moved into the finals of the London Grass Courts Tennis Championships.

Playing on both grass outside and wood inside, Miss Richey defeated Miss Van Zyl 6-4, 7-5. In today's final the American will meet Kerry Melville of Australia, who defeated Judy Tegart, also of Australia, 6-3, 10-8.

Miss Richey was trailing 3-2 in the second set when the rain started. After waiting 1 1/2 hours, officials decided to move the match indoors.

The South African adapted to the wood more easily and increased her lead to 4-2 as Miss Richey failed to clear the net with two forehands.

But the Texan recovered and broke back immediately with a spectacular backhand down the line.

A superb backhand volley — on one of Miss Richey's rare trips to the net — paved the way for another service break at 6-5.

Irwin Uses 'Palmer Charge' To Grab Lead In NCAA Meet

SHAWNEE ON DELAWARE, Pa. (AP)—Hale Irwin, charged around Shawnee Golf Course like an amateur Arnold Palmer, fired a spectacular seven under par 65 Friday to take the lead in the 70th annual NCAA golf championship with a 54-hole total of 207.

The 22-year-old All-Big Eight Conference football safetyman, from the University of Colorado, collected nine birdies and lofted a five iron shot off the 220-yard 14th tee that took two bounces and rolled into the cup for his first hole-in-one in competitive golf.

On the smallish side at 5-foot-8, although he claims to weigh 180 pounds, Irwin overtook the leader of the first two rounds, Florida's husky Steve Melnyk, and opened up a five-stroke lead in the tournament won previously by such golf luminaries as Jack Nicklaus, Phil Rodgers, Kermit Zarley and Harvie Ward.

The bespectacled Irwin, dapper looking in a yellow shirt, tan slacks, black and white shoes and yellow socks, said he had adopted Palmer's offensive approach to the game, but tries to temper it with a defensive play when the situation calls for it.

"Palmer is the greatest offensive player in golf; he doesn't know how to play defense. That's why he blew the U.S. Open last year," said Irwin as he explained his philosophy of play.

Melnky, who started the third round over the 7,025-yard par 72 course, which features a long back nine and 18 tricky greens, slipped to a par 72 and second place with a 54 hole total of 212. Hal Underwood, the junior

Golf Is Year Round Job For Houston's Williams

SHAWNEE ON DELAWARE, Pa. (AP)—If you have any doubt as to the year round thinking of pudgy Dave Williams you only have to look upon a prayer on his office wall at the University of Houston-to wit:

"Oh God in the game of life you know that though the most of us are duffers we all aspire to be champions with plenty of birdies and eagles."

This is the philosophy that the one time engineer has been drilling into his golfers since the day he took over as golf coach in 1951. It wasn't much of a job then. Houston had lost 25 unsalaried.

"It's been tough and we've worked very, very hard. The people in Houston have been real good to us, let us use their golf courses. The players have been dedicated," he asserted in his typically, low modulated southern accent.

The hard work, dedication and yes, the luck were never more evident than Thursday on the Shawnee Inn golf course, when Houston came from fourth place in the final round of the 36 hole championship to win in the rain and gathering darkness over a downcast University of Florida team.

On the Cougars' last hole, however, junior Hal Underwood hit a tee shot into a lake. The ball miraculously skipped three times over the top of the water and landed on a bank just below the green. Underwood pitched up 30 feet short of the pin.

Williams, who said his team dotes on pressure, was watching, his straw hat in hand. He said nothing to his player. The youngster lined up the putt and calmly rolled it in to clinch the title.

"Nice going son," said Williams, outwardly the same calm, emotionless 40-year-old who has made Houston a college golf legend. "It was the most pressure since 1956, when we won our first national title."

The pleasant Texan denied allegations by some other coaches that he is loaded with boys on full scholarships and has unlimited funds to get the golfers he wants.

He also refuses to comment on remarks by some that he is not a coach but a recruiter, and that when classes interfere with golf at Houston, it isn't golf that suffers.

Phil Rodgers, one of 23 former Williams' pupils on the pro circuit, added something to the classroom legend once when he responded to a question as to how hard he studied at Houston: "Oh, we cracked a book now and then, but we usually were on the tee at 11 a.m."

"I don't have a full four year scholarship boy on my team," he insisted. "The most I give is two-thirds scholarship aid, although I do have one boy on my present freshman team who will get the full ride. That is the exception not the rule."

He counted down the aid given some of his better known stars in recent years.

"Kermit Zarley and Homero Blancas received tuition and books, which comes to about $400 a year," he said.

Speaking of Marty Fleckman, who for three rounds, as an amateur, led the recent U.S. Open won by Jack Nicklaus, Williams said he received two-thirds aid, which at Houston, would amount to about $1,000.

First Clinic For Trainers Set In July

All high school football coaches, trainers, student-trainers, other coaches and principals have been invited to attend.

Trainers from the state colleges, along with several doctors, will conduct clinic sessions dealing with common high school injuries and problems.

The clinic will be free with the trainers and doctors furnishing their services free of charge.

Grady Morgan of Southeastern College at Hammond is chairman of the Clinic. Other state college trainers who'll assist are Gene Christmas of Northwestern, Carl Williams, Southern University, Dowell Fontenot, McNeese State, Glenn Tech, Charles Martin, Northeast, Gene Harvey and Dan Washington, Grambling and Lloyd LeBlanc, Nicholls State.

Dr. Richard Munson of Clinton, Dr. Cedric Lowrey and Dr. Paul C. Trickett will talk on various panels.

At the end of each day's session a question and answer session will be held.

The clinic has been endorsed by several physicians groups interested in reducing high school athletic injuries.

McCool Placed On Disabled List

CINCINNATI (AP) — Billy McCool, a top relief pitcher who was trying to become a regular starter this season, became the third Cincinnati Reds player to go on the disabled list Friday.

A team spokesman said McCool, who has a sore left wrist, will join shortstop Leo Cardenas and outfielder Tommy Harper on the list of disabled players.

Dr. Fager, Furl Sail Are Choices To Shine In Today's Racing Program

By ORLO ROBERTSON Associated Press Sports Writer

A pair of swift front running 3-year-olds, Dr. Fager and Furl Sail, are the odds-on-choices, to win the major share of the two $100,000 plus purses which head today's thoroughbred racing program.

Lightly campaigned Dr. Fager, winner of six of his eight career starts and $192,803, takes on five other 3-year-olds in the one mile of the Arlington Park Classic.

Furl Sail, with eight victories, one second and one third and a bank account of $178,290 to show for 10 races this year, opposes nine other 3-year-old fillies in the 1 1/4 miles of the Coaching Club American Oaks at Aqueduct.

Dr. Fager, who has raced only three times this season and includes a narrow triumph over Belmont Stakes-Preakness winner Damascus among his conquests, will be making his first start since being disqualified out of first money in the Jersey Derby at May 30.

With six starts, the Classic will be worth $106,000 and first place $81,000. Under 120 pounds, including jockey Braulio Baeza, the Tartan Stable star will give two pounds to Diplomat Way and four to the mud-loving Disciplinarian. Lightning Orphan, Suteki and Pointmenow complete the field.

Furl Sail, who like Dr. Fager likes to take off and squelch rivals with a burning early pace, was made the 3-5 choice Friday to complete a sweep of New York's Triple Crown for sophomore fillies. She already has won the Acorn and Mother Goose. A victory in the Oaks and a sweep of the Triple would be worth a $25,000 bonus to Furl Sail's owner-breeder—Mrs. Edwin K. Thomas of Paris, Ky.

With 10 starters it'll be the richest Oaks in the 51 runnings of the stake. Gross value will be $131,750 with $85,637.50 going to the winner.

Standifer-Kennedy Wedding Vows Are Read In Oak Grove

Glowing candles enhanced the yellow and white theme that prevailed for the wedding of Miss Virginia Ann Standifer and Henry Michael Kennedy at First Church of God in Oak Grove on Sunday, June 18 at 3 p.m. The couple exchanged their vows during a double ring ceremony with M. W. Kennedy as officiating minister. Their parents are Mrs. Jocelyn Standifer and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Kennedy all of Oak Grove.

A candle tree filled with yellow tapers gracing the altar was flanked by baskets of yellow and white gladioli. Three single candelabra holding yellow tapers accented groupings of glistening magnolia leaves to enhance the altar setting for the wedding.

Miss Rena Elkins, organist, and Mrs. Ronnie Elkins, soloist, presented traditional nuptial music.

Joe Forrest Standifer gave his sister in marriage. She was wearing a white peau de soie gown designed on princess lines and paneled in front with Spanish lace encrusted with seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered into points over the wrists, and in her hands she held a bouquet of daisies and carnations surrounding a yellow throated orchid.

Tiny satin buttons ornamenting the back of the bride's gown ended at a box pleat which flowed into a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion drifted from a crown of tulle leaves tipped with seed pearls.

Miss Louise Standifer was maid of honor and Mrs. Willey Halley of Monroe, matron of honor. Miss Barbara Greer of San Antonio, Tex., and Miss Sandra Crowe were bridesmaids. They were all wearing yellow bonded crepe A-line dresses styled with lace bell sleeves Daisy adorned ring headpieces held their nose veils of tulle as headaddresses. They carried nosegays of daisies and white carnations.

Candles were lighted by Jamie and Rusty Ezell, the groom's niece and nephew.

Richard Attebury of Houston, Tex., was best man, and Larry Kennedy, brother of the groom, Ronnie Elkins of Houston, Texas and David Paul of Buckeye, were groomsmen-ushers.

Mrs. Standifer was wearing for her daughter's wedding a blue silk shantung ensemble with a blue hat and bone shoes. The groom's mother was wearing a pink lace model with pink hat and gloves with white shoes.

Both mothers wore cymbidium orchids to accent their wedding attire.

RECEPTION

The bride's chosen color theme of yellow continued in the decorations for the wedding reception which followed the ceremony in the reception room of the church.

A tiered wedding cake was on the bride's table which was covered in a cutwork linen cloth and enhanced by a bridal centerpiece. Yellow punch was served by Misses Sherri Boyles of Columbia, and Marcia Sanders, Mrs. Kenneth Crowe and Miss Diane Spikes of Bastrop served cake.

When the couple left for Houston, Tex., where they will establish their home, the bride was wearing a three piece imported blue linen ensemble with navy and white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Oak Grove High School and Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Kennedy also graduated from Oak Grove High School and is attending Gulf Coast Bible College in Houston, Tex.

Standifer-Kennedy Wedding Vows Are Read In Oak Grove

Glowing candles enhanced the yellow and white theme that prevailed for the wedding of Miss Virginia Ann Standifer and Henry Michael Kennedy at First Church of God in Oak Grove on Sunday, June 18 at 3 p.m. The couple exchanged their vows during a double ring ceremony with M. W. Kennedy as officiating minister. Their parents are Mrs. Jocelyn Standifer and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Kennedy all of Oak Grove.

A candle tree filled with yellow tapers gracing the altar was flanked by baskets of yellow and white gladioli. Three single candelabra holding yellow tapers accented groupings of glistening magnolia leaves to enhance the altar setting for the wedding.

Miss Rena Elkins, organist, and Mrs. Ronnie Elkins, soloist, presented traditional nuptial music.

Joe Forrest Standifer gave his sister in marriage. She was wearing a white peau de soie gown designed on princess lines and paneled in front with Spanish lace encrusted with seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered into points over the wrists, and in her hands she held a bouquet of daisies and carnations surrounding a yellow throated orchid.

Tiny satin buttons ornamenting the back of the bride's gown ended at a box pleat which flowed into a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion drifted from a crown of tulle leaves tipped with seed pearls.

Miss Louise Standifer was maid of honor and Mrs. Willey Halley of Monroe, matron of honor. Miss Barbara Greer of San Antonio, Tex., and Miss Sandra Crowe were bridesmaids. They were all wearing yellow bonded crepe A-line dresses styled with lace bell sleeves Daisy adorned ring headpieces held their nose veils of tulle as headdresses. They carried nosegays of daisies and white carnations.

Candles were lighted by Jamie and Rusty Ezell, the groom's niece and nephew.

Richard Atteberry of Houston, Tex., was best man, and Larry Kennedy, brother of the groom, Ronnie Elkins of Houston, Texas and David Paul of Buckeye, were groomsmen-ushers.

Mrs. Standifer was wearing for her daughter's wedding a blue silk shantung ensemble with a blue hat and bone shoes. The groom's mother was wearing a pink lace model with pink hat and gloves with white shoes.

Both mothers wore cymbidium orchids to accent their wedding attire.

RECEPTION

The bride's chosen color theme of yellow continued in the decorations for the wedding reception which followed the ceremony in the reception room of the church.

A tiered wedding cake was on the bride's table which was covered in a cutwork linen cloth and enhanced by a bridal centerpiece. Yellow punch was served by Misses Sherri Boyles of Columbia, and Marcia Sanders, Mrs. Kenneth Crowe and Miss Diane Spikes of Bastrop served cake.

When the couple left for Houston, Tex., where they will establish their home, the bride was wearing a three piece imported blue linen ensemble with navy and white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Oak Grove High School and Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Kennedy also graduated from Oak Grove High School and is attending Gulf Coast Bible College in Houston.

Among the guests are Mr. and Mrs. William L. Townsend Sr., Mr. and Mrs. William L. MOTHER'S OWN ROOM

Dad has his den, so it's only fair that Mother should have her own room in the house, says the Tile Council of America. The Council suggests enlarging a big closet or putting up a partition wall, surfacing the floor and walls of the resulting room with a durable, low-maintenance material like ceramic tile and furnishing it simply with sewing machine, a few chairs and perhaps a portable T.V.

Remembering Happy Days Antidote For Dreary Ones

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Please tell young mothers not to throw away those worn diapers. Instead, they should fold an old one and machine-stitch it inside a good, new diaper.

This way their babies will have a double diaper for night time. Also, these "Mom-made" diapers will be less bulky than using two new ones folded together.

This is what I do, and I find I'm not running out of new diapers all the time.

Mrs. D. Moore

Dear Mothers:

I think that is a great idea. This would also be wonderful for those who have a second or third baby. Mainly because the diapers have been washed so many times they are thinner and far less bulky. Makes it easier to pin it on the baby.

So fold them to size and start stitching, mothers. Besides, instead of hanging two diapers on wash day, you'll only hang one. And your idea of putting the new one on the outside is great. We appreciate it more than you will ever know. God bless you.

Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

My antidote for those "dreary days" which all of us sometime have is remembering a particularly pleasant moment of the day before.

My husband and I have a special time each night when we recall something of the passing day — a beautiful sunset, a child's smile, a prayer come true.

Dear Abby

Nonbelievers Number Few When Put To 'Final' Test

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You really opened your big mouth and stuck both feet in it when you advised the wife of the man who was brought up in the Catholic church, and got fed up with it, to send her husband to a head-shrinker. Religion is so much superstition and hokum which in itself, is a form of a "mental disease."

Those who believe that a notcracker, becomes the "flesh of God" when they eat it, are sick, not those who don't believe it. I could go on pointing out the absurdities of religion, but I doubt that it would do any good as most religionists are so completely brainwashed they can't think straight when it comes to religion.

Religion serves a good purpose for people who need a crutch. But when they no longer need it, they are well, not sick. I always thought you were half nuts. Now I'm sure of it.

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS
DEAR ABBY: You religious believers can make all sorts of remarks about us nonbelievers in the public press, but the opinion of the nonbeliever is never expressed without censorship or distortion.

If there is truly freedom of religion, and freedom of the press, then a person has as much right not to believe as one has TO believe. And the nonbeliever's opinions should be printed alongside the believers'.

This is one letter that will never make your column, but I had to write it.

ANTI-RELIGIONIST
DEAR ABBY: Just because a man has suddenly found out that religion is one of the biggest rackets going on, you say he's a mental case.

And what do you base your opinion on? A poor guy got tired of putting food on the table and hearing his wife and kids thank "God" for it.

I once knew a man who never rose from the table without thanking his wife for the meal. Would you send him to the head doctor, too?

NONBELIEVER

DEAR ABBY: So now you are a psychiatric diagnostician yet? I refer to the man who suddenly got this "thing" about religion, as his wife put it, because he refused to go to church, ridiculed her and the children when they did, wouldn't let the priest in the house, and when his wife said grace at the table demanded, "Don't thank God for the food — thank ME!"

With no more than that to go on, you say the man has a symptom of mental illness and ought to see a doctor. E.S.P. maybe you have, Abby?

This man would find many a kindred spirit in a Unitarian church where there are many well-balanced, sane, educated people who formerly belonged to an orthodox church, but developed a "thing" about what they were taught there.

P.M.P.
DEAR ABBY: I go along with your answers about 99 per cent of the time, but this time I disagree that the man who has "lost" his religion is mentally ill.

Isn't it possible that he came to the stage that he could no longer swallow some of the precepts of the church, and he is acting that way because his wife is trying to ram it down his throat — sending a priest around when he doesn't want to see one?

I've seen many supposedly "sane" people who are anti-religious. It is the religious communicant who does not mean what he says, who uses religion to maintain his status or advance his career, and who, having in reality little or no faith himself, demands it all the more loudly of others.

SURPRISED AT YOU
DEAR ABBY: You advised a wife, whose husband turned his back on religion, to consult a doctor because he had this "thing" about religion.

Aw, come on, Abby, many people quit believing in Santa Claus and fairy tales when they are seven years old, and they aren't referred to doctors.

Your Problems

Urge Use Of Seat Belts When Riding

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. It could save a child's life.

I'm the mother of two precious little girls. My four-year-old son is gone forever because of my carelessness.

Our car is equipped with seat belts, but because my children didn't like to be strapped in, and I was too lazy to insist, I let them stand up in the rear of the car.

Four months ago I was driving the girls to school and on the way home I had to jam on the brakes to avoid hitting a dog. My little boy, who was standing up in the rear of the car, went through the windshield and was killed instantly.

Every day I see women driving with small children standing up in cars. I have to fight the impulse to stop and tell them what happened to me. You can get the word to these mothers better than anyone. Will you please do it, Ann? — DETROIT MOTHER

Dear Mother: Here is your letter, and I can add nothing except my fervent hope that mothers everywhere will learn something from your tragic experience.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to laugh at the letter from the woman who complained because her husband refused to get up and give the baby his 4:00 A.M. bottle.

I am a service wife who wishes her husband was home right now so I could let him sleep the whole night through. The idea of getting a man up to feed a child is ridiculous. Most of us service wives are lucky if our husbands are around when our babies are born.

It makes me mad when civilian wives tell us how fortun-

Enameled Jewelry

Needs Cleaning

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Much spring jewelry is designed in enamel or other kinds of colored surfaces. Such pieces will need cleaning more frequently than does gold or silver surfaced jewelry.

Use lukewarm water and mild soap, such as baby shampoo or soap flakes gentle enough for lingerie. Don't soak the jewelry, as this may loosen the settings around fake stones or mosaic pieces in enamel jewelry. Simply brush it lightly with an old tooth brush or other fairly soft brush.

Rinse the jewelry in clear luke warm water, pat dry between folds of terry cloth towel. Pieces can be laid on the towel for more thorough air drying. Laying them on hard surfaces may scratch them.

If you have a question you want answered, write or call "Mr. Editor, Tell Me, Please" at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it on to you each Saturday in this column.

If gasoline is used as an "edger" to control grasses growing along a sidewalk or flower bed, will the effects be cumulative to the surrounding grasses? The gasoline kills grass along the edges of our flowerbeds and along the brick wall, but grass, St. Augustine, seems to be less healthy in the natural drainage. Is the grass in wide areas of the lawn absorbing the gasoline, also?

We checked with the agriculture department here and found the following information: First, the use of gasoline is highly dangerous, and the spokesman urged that you use a less flammable solution. In answer to your questions, they do not feel that this is the trouble, but to be able to give a definite answer, they suggest that you bring a sample of the dying grass, including the leaves, stem and roots, to the Agriculture Building, Cypress Street, in West Monroe, Monday through Wednesday. These can be sent to Baton Rouge to determine the exact cause of trouble. The spokesman also suggested that if a person continues killing grasses with fluid, a special agricultural base can be brought at bulk station, or diesel fuel can be used and is much safer than gasoline.

I am a World War II veteran with a 50 percent service-connected disability. Each month I get a compensation check for this disability. After my death will my wife get anything from the Veterans Administration?

The Service Office for Onychia Parish Veterans Administration said that if a service-connected disability is a contributing factor to the death of the service man, then the widow would get dependency and indemnity compensation. Otherwise, we are told, she would be eligible for a pension if she meets other requirements.

If a man puts out hedge bushes or trees close to another man's land and they grow into large trees, who is supposed to cut back the limbs?

A property owner has a right to cut limbs which grow over his property, whether the tree or bush is on his land or adjoining property, we are told. However, he cannot cut the limb back farther than his property line. We suggest you check with your attorney.

What are the starting salaries of the Twin City Fire Departments?

According to spokesmen for the Monroe and West Monroe departments, the starting salary for both is $200.

What are the different types of measles? I have heard there were three types and that you could have them all more than once. Is this true? Also my children have had the measles vaccine. Does this cover only what they call the "red measles"?

The Onychia Parish Health Unit reports two definite types of measles and a third disease which closely resembles the measles. The known types are the German, commonly known as the three-day measles, and the Rubella, or red measles. Now medical knowledge has identified the "Third Disease," which we are told, resembles the measles, but actually is not. Nor is it believed to be contagious. The vaccine is for the red measles and no booster is needed as far as can be determined at the present time.

Can a person donate a pint of blood to a local hospital and have it credited to a person or hospital in another city and state?

We are told this can be done, but certain requirements must be met by the person making the donation. He should have a letter of authorization from the hospital where the credit is to be given telling of the need of the blood. If this hospital is a member of the clearing house (and most hospitals with laboratory blood banks are members) then the blood is taken and the credit sent to the hospital, by way of the clearing house.

I am always reading about the "New York Stock Exchange," its impact on business and how business transactions there affect the nation's economy. But frankly, I don't know exactly what it is. Can you give me a brief explanation?

A "brief" explanation could hardly cover the vastness of the Stock Exchange. However, the 1967 "Fact Book" put out by the Exchange earlier this year gives a short summary. The New York Stock Exchange is the largest organized securities market in the nation. It is both national and international in character and operations. The Exchange itself does not buy, sell, own or set the prices of stocks traded. The prices are determined by the decisions of the millions of investors who use the exchange and member firm offices to carry out their investments. The Exchange is an unincorporated association. It is governed by a 50-man board, 29 member and allied members who are elected by the member firms, and a president and three governors representing the public viewpoint, elected by the board.

I have seen the word "Solon" on numerous occasions, but do not know exactly what it means. Will you please tell me just what it means?

It means, according to Webster's Dictionary, a legislator. In the sense of today's usage, a legislator or member of the lawmaking bodies, either state or national. The word comes from Greek history, from the name Solon, an Athenian statesman born about 638 B.C.

Can you tell me what was the International Treaty for the peaceful use of land in the Ice Zones? Many countries claimed to have sovereignty titles to it, but the Soviet Union did not acknowledge these rights. What was the name of the land in question?

You are referring, we believe, to the Antarctic Treaty, signed in Washington, D.C., on Dec. 1, 1959, but not to take effect until two years after ratification, which dedicated Antarctica, or the South Pole, for peaceful purposes only and restricted its use for military purposes. It promoted international cooperation in scientific research, exchange of personnel, information and goods. None of the member nations had to renounce its claims, or previously asserted right to claim, such as exploration and disposal of radioactive wastes. In Antarctica, were prohibited, but peaceful and scientific use of atomic devices were, and are, permitted. The treaty had provisions for new member nations wishing to take an active part in antarctic activities and binds its members for a period of 30 years.

Why don't we have a radar check system on Highway 50 between Monroe and Vicksburg, Miss.? How can we get one?

A spokesman for Troop F Louisiana, state police, which polices the area through which this highway passes, said there is a radar unit in operation. It is not kept on any specific road or highway, but moved about the area on periods of one day. It has been in operation on Highway 50, and the spokesman pointed out, will be put back on this highway again, as an aid again.

Please tell me the address of the St. Louis Cardinals Baseball Club.

St. Louis Baseball Cardinals, Bush Memorial Stadium, St. Louis, Missouri.

I would like to know if a motorcycle driver's permit can be issued if the operator is 14 years old? Also where are these licenses obtained and is the test for a motorcycle license different from that for a car? What is the difference?

A person can apply and take the test for motorcycle license at the age of 14 years. For an automobile driver's license, it is 15 years. These tests may be taken at the Department of Public Safety, License Division, Selman Field, or on Claiborne St. in West Monroe. The written portion of the test is the same for both the motorcycle and automobile license. If this is passed, the motorcycle driver then takes the other portion handling the cycle on a prescribed route while an official observer watches. He must know the same signals as a person applying for an automobile driver's license.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-2-4

"WATS" telephone service is?

WATS is short for Wide Area Telephone Service. WATS provides station-to-station long distance calling at a specified monthly rate instead of individual call billing.

I know several young boys who are 16 and 17 years old. They have minors' releases. I think, so they could get better jobs. I have been told any boy can get such a permit. Is this so?

We are told by a spokesman from the State Department of Labor there is no such thing as a "minor release" for under 18 years. Many of the major companies, particularly those with off-shore drilling, require releases for employees over 18 but under 21 years of age. The law does require employment certificates for all minors under the age of 18, but these are called "work permits." These permits are issued in Onychia Parish by the parish and city school board offices. In other areas, it would be the parish school board office. The employer fills out an intention to employ form which may be secured from the employment office or school board office. The minor then takes this form to the school board office with proof of age and the school board office issues the employment certificate. No permits are issued for certain hazardous occupations.

Ask youngsters and they will say that acne causes more anguish than any other skin problem; but further investigation will indicate that psoriasis is undoubtedly the unfriendliest of all.

It doesn't pain. It doesn't itch. It's not infectious. But it causes unhappiness in the patient mainly because of its unsightliness. It is perhaps not so disagreeable to the beholder as it is magnified in the eyes of the patient himself.

I recall two instances of psoriasis in pretty young women who cancelled their marriage engagements simply because they could not marry a young man who did not suspect they had psoriasis.

"I'd rather die than expose myself and my psoriasis on my honeymoon," one said. I've known young men who never went to the seashore for vacation because bathing trunks would expose their psoriasis.

WHITE, SCALY

Psoriasis is a slightly raised area of the skin, chronically inflamed and consisting of white, silvery scales. It may occur in small isolated patches or coalesce to form large areas of involvement. It may occur anywhere on the body, especially on knees and elbows, whether they are rich or poor. It is rare in children and seldom appears first after 45. It begins in the teens and in the twenties.

For thousands of years doctors have been stumped by psoriasis. Its cause is unknown. But we believe it is probably not due to bacteria, viruses or fungi. Is it due to an allergy? To parasites? We don't know, but are still looking.

We think that the predisposition to psoriasis is inherited in some cases. In some way, the disease is related to some forms of arthritis. At least 10 per cent of psoriasis patients suffer from some form of rheumatoid arthritis. It improves during pregnancy. There may be some connection between psoriasis and special diet, but we haven't found anything specific.

SUN HELPS

Sunbathing is the simplest and often the most effective treatment in bringing about temporary improvement. (Perhaps it is not common on hands and face because these exposed parts are constantly exposed to sunlight.) Ultraviolet treatments sometimes help, but are not so effective as natural sunlight.

Occasionally X-ray treatments are used to help chronic patches of the disease. But X rays should be used with caution and only by an experienced physician.

As in any disease for which we do not have a specific cure, the remedies are many and varied. Ammoniated mercury, coal tar products and chrysarobin have been stand-bys for years. Dermatologists have found many new helpful remedies during the past decade and are not so pessimistic about psoriasis as most people.

Investigations as to the cause of psoriasis are continuing. Meanwhile, unhappy patients pay out hundreds of thousands of dollars for quack remedies which are advertised in every medium. Reputable doctors don't make promises they can't keep; so disgruntled and embarrassed patients will "try anything once."

If you or yours has psoriasis, I ask you not to be too despondent. The majority of cases are mild and respond to recurring intervals to modern treatment.

Who knows that the discovery of the cause of psoriasis may come tomorrow. Once it is found, effective treatment usually follows.

Periodic visits to a dermatologist help the psyche as well as the soma.

Dr. Steincrohn is sorry he cannot answer readers' letters. Nevertheless, all questions of general interest are answered in later columns.

Street To Be Re-Opened At Tech Campus

RUSTON (Special) — Re-opening of a street at Louisiana Tech closed during the construction of a classroom building will improve traffic conditions on the campus this fall.

The street to be re-opened connects Hergot Avenue and South Railroad Avenue. It is one-way from the West Arizona intersection to South Railroad Avenue. The part to be re-opened is between Thatcher Hall dormitory and Madison Hall, new three-story classroom facility.

During construction of Madison Hall, traffic had to be rerouted between Memorial Gymnasium and the men's old gymnasium to reach South Railroad Avenue.
